Ninety-Seven New Trial Division Defenders Immediately Make a Difference

When she first came into Circuit Court, a young woman was facing a Bail Jumping charge while pregnant. She was held without bond. The situation was bleak; she sat in jail with no path forward, separated from the care she and her unborn child desperately needed. Attorney Alyssa Wiggins, a recent graduate of University of Kentucky's Rosenberg School of Law, stepped in and spent hours negotiating with the prosecutor, ultimately persuading them to reinstate the woman's original bond and allow her release if she entered a Mommy and Me treatment facility. With Alyssa's guidance, the client agreed to go to Karen's Place, where she not only thrived in treatment but welcomed a healthy baby into the world.

At sentencing months later, Alyssa presented her client's remarkable progress: a woman who had overcome addiction, embraced treatment, kept custody of her newborn, and was striving to reunite with her other children. Despite the seriousness of the Bail Jumping charge, Alyssa successfully argued for probation rather than prison time. The judge agreed, giving her client the chance to continue treatment and move forward with her family. Today, mother and child remain at Karen's Place, healthy and together—an outcome made possible by Alyssa's persistence, compassion, and unwavering advocacy.

DPA's Trial Division welcomed 97 new attorney-track employees in FY25. Over a third of the new recruits graduated from Kentucky law schools. The remaining new lawyers joined DPA from 19 other states, including one new defender who moved 2,101 miles to join the good work happening here. Alyssa's story is just one example of the ways these zealous advocates are making a difference in the lives of clients and communities across the Commonwealth.

Division Defenders Fighting for Justice Through New Evidence

Whitney Allen of the Kentucky Innocence Project represented a client in an evidentiary hearing on the client's motion for a new trial. Powerful new DNA testing completely excluded the client as the source of DNA found on the victim and at the crime scene. With this evidence, our team is working to ensure that our client's case is reconsidered and that justice is served. Allen was assisted by Paralegal Crystal Knox.

Division Defenders Challenging Issues Before Kentucky Supreme Court

Kit Thurman of the Appeals Branch represented a client on appeal of a lengthy prison sentence. The client was convicted of two counts of first-degree assault, six counts of first-degree wanton endangerment, possession of a handgun by a convicted felon, and first-degree persistent felony offender. The case raised significant issues that impact Kentucky law: denial of a self-defense instruction, a potential non-unanimous verdict, improper testimony, and a conviction despite insufficient evidence. Thurman fought for the client and the law before the Supreme Court to protect and ensure the right to a fair trial in Kentucky.

Division Defenders Use Teamwork to Secure Justice for Client

After the client had served over four years in custody, his case was finally resolved. Diligent pretrial work of attorneys from the Louisville Office and from the Conflict and Contract Services Division had highlighted the strength of the defense, leading the Commonwealth to concede it could not prove a murder charge. After four years, the charge was dismissed with prejudice and the client received the minimum sentence on a handgun charge. This outcome reflects the dedication, preparation, and commitment of conflict attorneys to ensuring justice is ultimately served, even after significant delays.

Division Defenders Providing Support Through Leadership

In 2025, Conflict and Contract Services Division Attorney Duncan Varda stepped in as Acting Directing Attorney in two DPA offices experiencing leadership vacancies. His guidance and oversight ensured that both offices continued to operate effectively, maintain staff morale, and prioritize client services during periods of transition. With Duncan's support, critical casework and advocacy efforts remained uninterrupted, demonstrating the importance of flexible leadership in sustaining organizational stability and meeting the needs of those we serve.

June 2-4: DPA Annual Conference

DPA successfully trained 97 new attorneys from 40 law schools. The Class of 2024 was supported in their offices through direct supervision and peer support. The DPA provided support through 4.5 weeks of Newly Hired Attorney Training that was offered over their first year of practice. Class of 2024 members partnered with an experienced mentor for a year of structured mentorship.

Creative and proactive recruiting for the Class of 2025 included:

- September & October CareerFests in Louisville
- March Online CareerFest
- On-Campus recruiting at 50 law schools
- Online interviews at 14 law schools
- Use of web-based recruiting tools
- Recruiting of former Interns and Externs

Over 60 new lawyers will join DPA in the fall of 2025.

Agency Strategic Planning started in 2024 and continued through 2025, focusing on ways to improve retention throughout the agency.

LAW OPERATIONS DIVISION

Division Leads Smooth Transition as DPA Welcomes Louisville Office

On July 1, 2024, the Louisville Metro Public Defender's Office officially joined DPA, completing Kentucky's unified statewide public defender system. This accomplishment was the result of months of careful planning and dedication from every branch of the Law Operations Division. The Human Resources Branch welcomed 89 new employees, provided information on state benefits, and personally trained each new employee on state government processes. The Information Technology Branch built a new network, provided updated equipment, and made sure our new colleagues had what they needed to settle in with confidence. The Fiscal Branch handled the transition of property, leases, and contracts to state ownership. The success of the merger reflects not only the preparation behind the scenes, but also the flexibility and resilience of those in the Louisville Office who have quickly become part of DPA.

ALTERNATIVE SENTENCING WORKER PROGRAM

Originally facing a $10,000 cash bond and a 12-year sentence for a trafficking charge, ASW intervention helped a client secure treatment at Grace Recovery instead of incarceration. With judicial approval, the client entered treatment in April 2024 and completed the required six months. The client then chose to remain voluntarily, finding steady work at an automotive business, purchasing a car, and reconnecting with their son. The client's progress led the Commonwealth to reduce its offer from 12 years to just 25 months. The client now plans to stay in the new community, free from negative influences, and continue their sobriety journey. This success story shows how Alternative Sentencing Workers impact legal outcomes for the better while helping clients rebuild stable, productive lives.

INVESTIGATIVE SERVICES PROGRAM

After a retrial of a felony Driving Under the Influence case, the client was found Not Guilty after the DPA defense team methodically dismantled the prosecution's case. A key part of the defense strategy came from the investigator, whose creative work uncovered jail medical records showing the client had normal vitals and was medically cleared, evidence that strongly suggested he was not impaired. The investigator's findings gave the attorneys powerful material for trial. Combined with testimony from the client's mother, photographic evidence, and an expert witness who exposed flaws in the police investigation, the defense team presented a convincing case that the client was not guilty of DUI. Thanks to this collaborative effort, the jury acquitted the client after only a half hour of deliberation.

PROTECTION & ADVOCACY DIVISION

Division Defenders Help Client Gain Independence through Advocacy

Kentucky Protection and Advocacy (P&A) first met Amy in 2018 while monitoring an adult day treatment program. Despite being a participant, she was assisting others like a staff member.

Amy became a paraplegic after a 2002 car accident that led to multiple surgeries, an amputation, and later, a bladder cancer diagnosis. Isolated and depressed, she attempted suicide in 2016. With encouragement, she began attending day treatment and gradually rebuilt her confidence.

P&A connected Amy with the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation (OVR) to pursue employment. In 2019, she was hired by a local school system as an After School Aide. With P&A's support, she passed her paraeducator certification exam and advanced her career.

Transportation barriers soon threatened her independence, but with P&A's help, Amy learned to drive, purchased a van with her own savings, and secured modifications to make it accessible. Later, when OVR demanded repayment of $10,000 for van modifications after a car accident, P&A successfully appealed the decision, allowing Amy to purchase a new van and continue working.

Amy now thrives in her job and says, "Your agency gave me my independence back and helped me achieve my dreams and become a working member of society."

Amy was served through the PAIMI and CAP programs. Unfortunately, the proposed 2026 federal budget reduces PAIMI funding from $473,700 to $167,500, and eliminates CAP, PAIR, and PAVA entirely—cuts totaling more than $830,000. These reductions threaten critical services for Kentuckians with disabilities across the lifespan.
