timelines of services provided to clients to meet federal and state child welfare outcomes, and ensure the safety, permanency, and well-being of families and children.

CQI is a structured process which allows staff to participate in the examination and evaluation of:

- The effectiveness, quality, and efficiency of services provided to clients served by the Department for Community Based Services (DCBS);
- DCBS internal systems, procedures, and outcomes; and
- The relationships and interactions between DCBS and each family, as well as DCBS and the community stakeholders providing services to each family.

In order to facilitate an accurate examination of the Cabinet’s direct service delivery system, the Cabinet utilizes a CQI case review tool that is designed to measure the Cabinet’s ability to implement best practice and achieve positive outcomes on a state, regional, and individual case level. The CQI CARES (Case Automated Review and Evaluation System) case review system assists in meeting the agency goals to improve outcomes by focusing on the coaching/mentoring/monitoring process through review and supervision. CQI CARES is utilized for both first and second level case reviews and provides an opportunity through CQI meetings and processes to identify patterns/trends for quality improvement. The reviewer completes the case review tool in CQI CARES, and this provides case review data to assist with feedback and action planning that identifies both strengths and weaknesses of the case. By strengthening these processes and empowering staff to improve casework, it assists with meeting federal outcomes and requirements.

DCBS has also created a Kentucky Child and Family Services (KY CFSR) process. The KY CFSR team has developed and implemented the KY CFSR process in accordance with the federal CFSR). The review allows feedback to be provided to leadership, supervisors, and field staff. Feedback will include areas where the agency has strengths, as well as areas where the agency could improve performance and service delivery to the families and children served.
