

230.848 Voluntary self-exclusion -- Duties of fantasy contest service provider.

- (1) Each fantasy contest service provider shall include a statement regarding obtaining assistance with real-money gaming problems on the fantasy contest service provider's portal, website, computer, or mobile application and on all marketing materials and advertisements of the fantasy contest service provider.
- (2)
 - (a) A resident, or nonresident if allowed to participate in fantasy contests, may voluntarily prohibit himself or herself from establishing a fantasy contest account with a fantasy contest service provider.
 - (b) The corporation shall incorporate the voluntary self-exclusion program for fantasy contests into any existing self-exclusion program that it operates on July 15, 2026.
- (3) If a self-excluded person participates in a fantasy contest, the fantasy contest service provider shall report to the corporation, at a minimum, the name of the self-excluded person, the date of participation, the amount or value of any money, prizes, or awards forfeited, if any, and any other action taken.
- (4) A fantasy contest service provider shall not pay any prize or award to a person who is on the corporation's self-exclusion list. Any prize or award won by a person on the self-exclusion list is forfeited and shall be donated by the fantasy contest service provider to the problem gaming charities or programs as identified and directed by the corporation on a quarterly basis by the twenty-fifth day of the following month.
- (5) A fantasy contest service provider shall develop and maintain a program to mitigate and curtail compulsive play, which may be conducted in conjunction with the corporation.
