2. State compliance standards. KRS 205.520(3) authorizes the cabinet, by administrative regulation, to comply with a requirement that may be imposed or opportunity presented by federal law for the provision of medical assistance to Kentucky's indigent citizenry. KRS 194A.050(1) requires the cabinet secretary to "formulate, promote, establish, and execute policies, plans, and programs and shall adopt, administer, and enforce throughout the Commonwealth all applicable state laws and all administrative regulations necessary under applicable state laws to protect, develop, and maintain the health, personal dignity, integrity, and sufficiency of the individual citizens of the Commonwealth and necessary to operate the programs and fulfill the responsibilities vested in the cabinet. Kelly*, 397 U.S. 254 (1970), and any additional standards specified in 42 C.F.R. 431, Subpart E. Additionally, the Medicaid program must satisfy various notice requirements, as well as hearing conduct requirements, among other related requirements.

42 C.F.R. 483, Subpart E requires the Medicaid program to provide a system for a resident of a skilled nursing facility (SNF) or a nursing facility (NF) to appeal a notice from the SNF or NF of intent to discharge or transfer the resident, and for an individual adversely affected by any pre-admission screening resident review (PASRR) determination made by the state in the context of either a preadmission screening or an annual resident review under subpart C of part 483 to appeal that determination. Additionally, the Medicaid program must provide an appeals system that meets the requirements of this 42 C.F.R. 483, Subpart E and 42 C.F.R. 431, Subpart E.

4. Will this administrative regulation impose stricter requirements, or additional or different responsibilities or requirements, than those required by the federal mandate? This amendment does not impose stricter, than federal, requirements.

5. Justification for the imposition of the stricter standard, or additional or different responsibilities or requirements. This amendment does not impose stricter, than federal, requirements.

STATEMENT OF EMERGENCY

921 KAR 2:055E

This emergency administrative regulation is necessary in accordance with KRS 13A.190(1)(a)2., preventing the loss of federal funds, by enhancing the timeliness of administrative hearings related to the Kentucky Transitional Assistance Program (K-TAP), the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP), the State Supplementation Program (SSP), or an applicant or a recipient of the Child Care Assistance Program (CCAP). The emergency administrative regulation transitions the final order process from the Appeal Board for Public Assistance to the secretary of the Cabinet for Health and Family Services or the secretary's designee, thereby eliminating delays experienced through the optional utilization of an Appeal Board for Public Assistance. An ordinary administrative regulation would not allow the agency to improve timeliness standards to comply with federal requirements; avoid federal findings, costs associated with remedying the findings, and possible federal financial penalties; and improve service delivery to the vulnerable populations that utilize these public assistance programs. This emergency administrative regulation will be replaced by an ordinary administrative regulation. The ordinary administrative regulation is identical to this emergency administrative regulation.

STATEMENT OF EMERGENCY
921 KAR 3:060E

This emergency administrative regulation is necessary in accordance with KRS 13A.190(1)(a)2., preventing the loss of federal funds, by enhancing the timeliness of administrative disqualification hearings for the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program. The emergency administrative regulation facilitates the transition of the final order process from the Appeal Board for Public Assistance to the secretary of the Cabinet for Health and Family Services or the secretary's designee, thereby eliminating delays experienced through the optional utilization of an Appeal Board for Public Assistance. An ordinary administrative regulation would not allow the agency to improve timeliness standards to comply with federal requirements; avoid federal findings, costs associated with remedying the findings, and possible federal financial penalties; and improve service delivery to the vulnerable populations that utilize this public assistance program. This emergency administrative regulation will be replaced by an ordinary administrative regulation. The ordinary administrative regulation is identical to this emergency administrative regulation.

STATEMENT OF EMERGENCY 921 KAR 3:070E

This emergency administrative regulation is necessary in accordance with KRS 13A.190(1)(a)2., preventing the loss of federal funds, by enhancing the timeliness of fair hearing procedures for the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program. The emergency administrative regulation transitions the final order process from the Appeal Board for Public Assistance to the secretary of the Cabinet for Health and Family Services or the secretary's designee, thereby eliminating delays experienced through the optional utilization of an Appeal Board for Public Assistance. An ordinary administrative regulation would not allow the agency to improve timeliness standards to comply with federal requirements; avoid federal findings, costs associated with remedying the findings, and possible federal financial penalties; and improve service delivery to the vulnerable populations that utilize this public assistance program. This emergency administrative regulation will be replaced by an ordinary administrative regulation. The ordinary administrative regulation is identical to this emergency administrative regulation.

This administrative regulation provides guidelines for determining whether an individual[a person] qualifies as a resident, part-year resident, or nonresident for Kentucky income tax purposes[and provides special instruction to cover some of the more common problem areas].

Section 1. Definitions. (1) "Domicile" means the place where an individual has established permanent residency.

(2) "Nonresident" is defined by KRS 141.010(18).

(3) "Nonresident citizen" means an individual residing in a foreign country who may file federal income tax returns as a nonresident citizen.

(4) "Part-year resident" is defined by KRS 141.010(20).

(5) "Resident" is defined by KRS 141.010(24).["Nonresident" is defined by KRS 141.010(18).

(2) "Part-year resident" is defined by KRS 141.010(20).

(3)[Resident:]["Resident" is defined by KRS 141.010(24).]
[means any individual domiciled within Kentucky on the last day of the taxable year and includes any individual who spends more than 183 days in Kentucky and maintains a place of abode in Kentucky during this period. All other individuals are nonresidents.]

Section 2. Nonresident Requirements.[To qualify as a nonresident, the taxpayer shall submit proof of his bona fide intention to reside permanently elsewhere before the last day of the taxable year, and that he has spent less than 183 days in Kentucky.] If any individual[person] who has moved out of Kentucky returns to Kentucky within six (6) months from the time he had moved, it shall be construed that the removal from Kentucky was not intended to be permanent and the individual[such person] shall be considered a resident, or part-year resident during the time in which his abode may have been elsewhere. Any individual[person] changing his domicile during a taxable year may also be required to furnish evidence of compliance with requirements of the other state with respect to taxation and qualifications as a resident citizen.[Persons residing in Kentucky and living part of the year in other states will be considered residents of Kentucky unless it can be shown that abode in another state is of permanent nature, and that less than 183 days were spent in Kentucky.]

Section 3. Domicile. [Generally, a domicile is the place where an individual has established permanent residency][resident]. A domicile once obtained continues until a new domicile[one] is acquired. Domicile is not changed by removal for a definite period or for incidental purposes. To constitute a change, there shall[must] be intent to change, actual removal, and a new abode.

Section 4. Nonresident Citizens. An individual residing in a foreign country who may[is permitted to] file federal income tax returns as a nonresident citizen, and who immediately prior to residing in a foreign country was domiciled in Kentucky, is presumed to be a [full-time] Kentucky resident[and is required to file a][resident] [Kentucky income tax return as such]. If the individual's domicile is claimed to be outside Kentucky, the requirements of Section 3 of this administrative regulation shall[must] be met.

Section 6. Military Personnel. Under the provisions of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 as amended, a member of the Armed Forces retains the domicile which he had when he entered military service. Individuals[Persons] domiciled in Kentucky at the time of induction will continue to be liable for the payment of Kentucky income taxes on all income regardless of where their military services are performed. Section 7. Reciprocity States. (1) Kentucky has reciprocal tax agreements with the states of Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Virginia, West Virginia, and Wisconsin. These agreements provide that salaries and wages earned in Kentucky by residents of those states are exempt from Kentucky income tax. Kentucky residents are exempt from income tax, imposed by these[such] states, on salaries and wages earned there. The Virginia Agreement, however, applies only to taxpayers who commute daily to their employment in the nonresident state.

(2) A Kentucky resident, working in one (1) of the states listed in subsection (1) of this section shall[above, must] file the required certificate of nonresidence with his employer if they wish for tax to not be withheld by that employer. NECESSITY, FUNCTION, AND CONFORMITY: KRS 131.130(1) authorizes the department to promulgate administrative regulations to administer and enforce Kentucky's tax laws. This administrative regulation provides a basis for the combined individual income tax return which permits married taxpayers to gain the benefits of separate filing on one return.[The administrative regulation also covers other points related to individual income tax forms, including requirement for Social Security number.]

Section 1.[Forms. (1) Resident. A resident return shall be filed on Revenue Form 740 (long form) or 740-S (short form) except that a new resident may file on Revenue Form 740-NP (nonresidents and part-year residents).

VOLUME 45, NUMBER 6 – DECEMBER 1, 2018

(2) ~~Nonresidents.~~ A nonresident return shall be filed on Revenue Form 740-NP.

Section 2. ~~[Filing Elections. (1)]~~ Separate Return. Any individual, whether married or single, may elect to file a separate return. If both spouses have income, separate returns are required for married taxpayers that do not have the same residency status as a resident, nonresident, or part year resident.

Section 2. [defined in KRS 141.010.

(2) Joint Return. A taxpayer[husband] and spouse[wife] may elect, for any year, to file a joint return if they are married at the close of the taxable year; or a surviving spouse may elect to file a joint return if the deceased spouse[husband or wife] died during the taxable year even though one (1) spouse had no gross income. If a joint return is filed, the gross income and adjusted gross income of the taxpayer[husband] and spouse[wife] are computed in an aggregate amount and the deductions and the net income are also computed on an aggregate basis. If separate returns have been filed by both spouses for the taxable year, the taxpayers[husband and wife] may elect to file an amended joint return if the Department of Revenue[Cabinet] is notified in writing that the separate return election is rescinded. Likewise, if two (2) married taxpayers[husband and wife] have filed a joint return for the taxable year, they may elect to file an amended combined or amended separate returns. If married taxpayers[a husband and wife] elect to file a combined return, refunds shall be made payable to the taxpayers[husband and wife] jointly and the taxpayers[husband and wife] shall be jointly and severally liable for all taxes, penalties, and interest. Married couples electing to file a combined return shall not be permitted to rescind such election and file separate returns for that taxable year. [Section 3. General Provisions. Each taxpayer must carefully prepare his return so as to set forth fully and clearly the information required and attach copies of all withholding statements designated to be filed with the Kentucky income tax returns. Returns which are not so prepared will not be accepted as meeting the requirements of the law. In the absence of a prescribed form, a statement made by a taxpayer disclosing his gross income and the deductions therefrom may be accepted as a tentative return. If filed within the prescribed time, such statement will relieve the taxpayer from penalties for failure to file or late filing if the tentative return is promptly supplemented by a return made on the proper form.

(2) The Social Security number and complete home address of the taxpayer together with the official post office and zip code shall be given in the space provided at the top of the return for the name and address of the taxpayer. A taxpayer having a permanent business address may give that address as the principal or mailing address if the complete home address is also given within the space provided.

(4) A manufacturer, distributor, or charitable organization shall not add to an electronic pulltab system any software or program unless the software or program has been certified by an independent testing facility. If the department detects or discovers an electronic pulltab system at a playing location that is using a program or software that has not been certified by an independent testing facility, the electronic pulltab system shall be determined to have an unauthorized modification and use of the system shall cease immediately.

(5) Any element of the central computer system that holds or maintains game data, other than an electronic pulltab device or point of sale station, shall be kept in a locked and secure enclosure with limited access to designated personnel. The system shall provide a secure physical and electronic means for securing the games and game data against alteration, tampering, or unauthorized access.

(6) The central computer system shall include a central server located in the Commonwealth of Kentucky that is accessible to the department so the department has the ability to remotely verify the operation, compliance, and internal accounting systems of the electronic pulltab system at any time. The department shall have real time and complete read-only access to all data for all systems and devices.

(a) The manufacturer shall provide to the department all current protocols, passwords, and any other required information needed to access the electronic pulltab system prior to the operation of the system within Kentucky, and at all times while the system remains operational within Kentucky.

Traceability of unauthorized access including time and date, users involved, and any other relevant information shall be available.

(11) An electronic pulltab system shall not permit the alteration of any accounting or significant event information. Significant events shall include power resets or failures, communication loss between an electronic pulltab device and the electronic pulltab system, any award in excess of the ~~single-win~~single-win limit for an electronic pulltab, or corruption of the electronic pulltab system memory or storage. If financial data is changed, an automated audit log shall be capable of being produced to document the following:

(a) Data element altered;

(b) Data element value prior to alteration;

(c) Data element value after alteration; and

(14) Electronic pulltab system software components shall be verifiable by a secure means at the system level. An electronic pulltab system shall have the ability to allow for an independent integrity check of the components from an outside source and is required for all control programs that may affect the integrity of the electronic pulltab system. This shall be accomplished by being authenticated by a third-party device, which may be embedded within the electronic pulltab system software or having an interface or procedure for a third-party application to authenticate the component. This integrity check shall provide a means for field verification of the electronic pulltab system components.

(15) The electronic pulltab system shall have a medium for securely storing electronic pulltab game sets ~~that~~which shall be mirrored in real time by a backup medium. The electronic pulltab system shall also provide a means for storing duplicates of the game sets already transmitted to the electronic pulltab devices so as to reflect, on an ongoing basis, changes in the transmitted game sets as they occur.

(a) All storage shall be through an error checking, nonvolatile physical medium, or an equivalent architectural implementation, so that if the primary storage medium fails, the functions of the electronic pulltab system and the process of auditing those functions shall continue with no critical data loss.

(b) The database shall be stored on redundant media so that a single failure of any portion of the system shall not result in the loss or corruption of data.

(c) If there is a catastrophic failure when the electronic pulltab system cannot be restarted in any other way, it shall be possible to reload the electronic pulltab system from the last viable backup point and fully recover the contents of that backup, to consist of at least the following information:

3. Auditing information, including all open game sets and the summary of completed game sets.

(16) Connections between all components of the electronic pulltab system shall only be through use of secure communication protocols ~~that~~[which] are designed to prevent unauthorized access or tampering, employing Data Encryption Standards (DES) or equivalent encryption with changeable seeds or algorithms.

(17) An electronic pulltab system's central computer system may be used to record the data used to verify game play and to configure and perform security checks on electronic pulltab devices, if the functions do not affect the security, integrity, or outcome of any game and meet the requirements ~~established/set forth~~ in this administrative regulation regarding program storage devices.

(18) An electronic pulltab system shall not display to the player, the licensed charitable organization, or the licensed distributor the number of electronic pulltabs that remain in a game set, or the number of winners or losers that have been drawn or still remain in the game set while the game set is still open for play. Once a game set has been closed, it shall not be able to be opened for play.

(19) The electronic pulltab system shall render unplayable the electronic pulltabs of a charitable organization once the organization logs out of the system at the end of the organization's charitable gaming session and until the organization logs back onto the system at the start of the organization's next scheduled charitable gaming session. If multiple organizations use the same electronic pulltab devices and electronic pulltab system, one (1) organization's electronic pulltab games and data shall not be accessible or played by another organization.

(13) The price for each type of bingo sheet, pack, or package shall be listed on the bingo program.

(14) Bingo paper sheets, bingo paper packs, and bingo paper packages shall be used during the bingo session for which they were purchased. A charitable organization shall not allow a player to carry over purchased, but unused, bingo paper sheets, bingo paper sheet packs, or bingo paper packages to a subsequent bingo session.

(15) A charitable organization shall not allow a player to play bingo paper that was not purchased at that session, except for braille cards pursuant to subsection 3 of this section[as provided in Section 13(3) of this administrative regulation].

(16) The charitable organization shall not duplicate or otherwise make copies of bingo paper.

(17) If a charitable organization sells the same paper packs or paper sheets for different prices, the packs or sheets shall be distinguishable by serial number.

(18) A charitable organization shall not sell bingo paper in a bundle.

(19) If a charitable organization sells bingo paper as a package, the package shall become a unique item with a certain price and the items in the package shall not be sold individually unless a separate serial number is used.

(20) If a charitable organization games in back-to-back sessions, it may pre-sell paper for the second session if a different set of paper is used with a different color or border and a different serial number. The money from the preselling of paper shall be deposited with the second session receipts and the sales recorded on the second session charitable gaming session records. If the price for the presold paper is discounted, the charitable organization shall list this discount on the charitable gaming session program and use a third set of paper with a different serial number.

Section 14. Playing. (1) All players shall be physically present at the location where the bingo game is held in order to play the game or claim a prize.

(2) The bingo session shall start when the balls are verified.

VOLUME 45, NUMBER 6 – DECEMBER 1, 2018

The balls shall be verified before the pickle jar, bonanza ball, or hot ball is selected and called. If a[an] licensed charitable organization is authorized to sell paper or electronic pulltabs during its bingo session, the licensed charitable organization may commence selling paper or electronic pulltabs [no more than two (2) hours] prior to the start of the bingo session with prior approval of the department. All paper or electronic pulltabs sold in this manner shall be reported on the licensed charitable organization's bingo session records.

(3) The caller shall turn off all personal electronic devices and shall not use any personal electronic devices while engaged in the calling of a bingo game.

(4) Before selecting or calling the first number in a game, the bingo caller shall call out the amount of the game prize to be awarded.

(5) Before selecting and calling the first number in a game, the bingo caller shall announce the pattern or arrangement of squares to be covered to win the game, which shall also be listed in the bingo program.

(6) After selecting each number, the bingo caller shall:

(a) Clearly announce the number;

(b) With the exception of a speed game, display the ball or other device used in a manner allowing the players to see the number;

(c) Cause the ball or other device to be placed in a ball tray or other device so as to prevent it from being placed back into the selection pool; and

(d) Enter each letter and number called on a flashboard or similar device for player viewing.

(7) A winner shall be determined when the preannounced pattern of squares is covered by a player on a card.

(8) It shall be the player's responsibility to notify a volunteer including the chairperson or caller that the player has a winning bingo combination.

Section 15. Pickle Jar, Bonanza Ball, or Hot Ball. (1) When an additional prize is to be awarded if a patron wins on a certain number, the rules of play, the maximum payout, and cost to enter shall be listed on the bingo program. These numbers may be selected and posted before the first game is called.

Section 16. Break-open[Break-Open] Bingo. (1) A break-open bingo game shall begin when, in the presence of players attending the bingo session, the charitable organization calls and posts, either manually or by use of a flashboard, a predetermined quantity of randomly selected bingo numbers from a selection device or a separate bingo number container. If a flashboard is used, these numbers shall be posted on a board separate from the regular bingo board unless the regular board is capable of keeping track of these numbers separately. The balls shall then be placed back into the selection pool until the game is played on the program.

(2) Sealed bingo paper sheets for a break-open[break-open] break open game may be sold throughout the bingo session. Additional bingo paper sheets for a break-open[break-open] game shall not be sold after the charitable organization resumes calling letters and numbers when the game is played on the program.

(3) A charitable organization may allow players to trade break-open[break-open] bingo faces for new faces.

(4) If the charitable organization allows players to trade break-open[break-open] bingo faces for new faces, two (2) sets of the game faces shall be maintained. One (1) set shall be known as the "original set" and shall be of a different serial number than the second set, known as the "trade in" set.

(5) A charitable organization shall list on the bingo program the price of the original set and the trade-in set.

Section 17. Player Pick. (1) If the charitable organization offers a Player Pick game, the requirements established in this section shall apply.

(2) A player shall select numbers between one (1) and seventy-five (75). A player shall not select more than five (5) numbers for each column. The player may allow the machine to select the numbers.

(3) Duplicate numbers shall not be played on a purchased face. If duplicate numbers appear on a face, the card shall be void.

(4) Once selected, the machine shall print a face with the selected numbers.

(5) The faces shall conform to the construction and randomization standards established[set forth] in this administrative regulation.

(6) The price of each face and the amount of numbers that will be chosen shall be listed on the bingo program.

(7) The numbers shall be daubed as the balls are called when the game is played as listed on the bingo program.

(8) A player shall win if he or she is the first person to cover the numbers.

Section 18. Continuation Games. (1) Multiple patterns may be played on one (1) bingo face. Each portion of the continuation game shall be considered a single bingo game, even though the bingo balls shall not be returned to the selection pool after a winner has been determined and verified.

(2) Each winning pattern shall be verified independently.

Section 19. Progressive Bingo Games. (1)(a) Progressive games or prizes connected to a bingo game or conditioned on winning a bingo game shall be permitted only if prizes awarded on progressive games are included in the prize limit established in KRS 238.545(1), regardless of the method by which a player is eligible to participate.

(b) The charitable organization shall be responsible for ensuring that the value of any progressive bingo game prize, when added to the values of the other prizes of the same date or session, does not exceed the statutory prize limit.

(c) All receipts on progressive bingo games shall be reported to the department as gross receipts for the date collected pursuant to KRS 238.550.

(2) Once a progressive bingo game has been started, the game shall be played in the same manner at every session until the prize is awarded. The jackpot prize shall be offered at each successive bingo session for that charitable organization until the jackpot prize has been won.

Section 20. Lucky Ball. (1) If the charitable organization offers Lucky Ball play, the requirements in this Section shall apply.

(2) Players may purchase one (1) Lucky Ball ticket prior to the beginning of a bingo session, and before purchasing any other bingo paper. Each player shall be limited to one (1) Lucky Ball ticket per bingo session.

(a) Lucky Ball tickets shall consist of a pre-printed form with space provided for the player's Lucky Ball number, name, date, and the name of the ticket seller to be written in. The Lucky Ball tickets shall also have pre-printed sequential ticket numbers for tracking and verification purposes.

(b) The cost of a Lucky Ball ticket shall not exceed five (5) dollars. Money from Lucky Ball ticket sales shall be retained by the charitable organization as part of the gaming proceeds from the gaming session.

(c) Each player may choose his[or her] own Lucky Ball number at the time of purchase of the ticket, and shall immediately write that number, in ink, on the Lucky Ball ticket, along with the player's name, the date, and the name of the ticket seller.

(d) Once the information is written on the Lucky Ball ticket, the carbon copy or electronic duplicate copy of the ticket shall be retained by the charitable organization, and all ticket copies shall be placed in numerical order as soon as possible after the start of a gaming session. The charitable organization shall verify that the player has written a correct name on the ticket by checking photo ID at the time of sale, and shall keep a log of tickets sold and Lucky Ball numbers to verify that any tickets are used only by the ticket buyer and are not traded or sold during the session.

(e) Once the player purchases bingo paper for play in that session, the player shall write their Lucky Ball number on the back of each piece of bingo paper to be put into play.

(3) During bingo play, any player who purchased a Lucky Ball number may mark that number as a free space, or "wildcard" number to mark their bingo paper to form bingos, regardless of whether that number is selected by the caller in regular play.

(4) No selling, trading, or exchange of any kind of Lucky Ball tickets or bingo paper may take place during a bingo session between players of their chosen Lucky Ball numbers. All monitors, sellers, and volunteers shall observe whether a player's Lucky Ball number matches the number written on the back of the bingo paper to prevent selling, trading, or exchange of Lucky Ball tickets or bingo paper.

(5) Verifying a bingo.

(a) Once a player announces a bingo, a volunteer or monitor reads the perm number from the bingo paper to the caller. The caller then enters the perm number into the console.

(b) If the console does not verify a bingo, and if the Lucky Ball tickets cannot be verified electronically by the perm numbers, the caller must ask if there is a Lucky Ball.

(c) If there is a Lucky Ball, the volunteer calls out only the receipt number on the Lucky Ball ticket to the caller, in the presence of a neutral player.

(d) The caller then communicates the receipt number to the office or to the person holding the carbon copies of the Lucky Ball tickets in numerical order. The charitable organization shall verify that the Lucky Ball ticket had not been sold, traded, or exchanged by the players, by checking the photo ID of the winning player and checking to ensure the Lucky Ball number was written on the back of the bingo paper.

(e) After the receipt is located and the receipt numbers verified, the Caller shall announce the Lucky Ball number to the Monitor and the audience. The neutral player shall still be viewing the ticket to verify the bingo. The Lucky Ball number of the winning player may or may not be the last number called.

(f) Once a bingo is verified, the caller shall announce the last number called and the number of valid bingos for that game. The same verification procedure shall be followed in the case of multiple bingos until all are verified.

Section 21. Winner Verification and Registration. (1) A manufacturer of bingo paper shall make available for purchase a verification book or other verification system for all paper manufactured.

(2) The charitable organization conducting a bingo game shall use a reliable verification system that corresponds with the set of paper in play.

(3) When a player declares a winning bingo, the steps established in this subsection shall be followed for winner verification.

(a) The game shall be stopped before the next number is called. If the next number has been selected, it shall be secured to ensure that if the declared "bingo" is invalid, the game will continue.

(b) If an electronic verifier or verifier book is used, a volunteer for the charitable organization shall:

1. Show the winning face to a neutral player, who shall be a player other than the winner; and
2. Call back the perm number while in front of the neutral player.

(c) If any other verification system is used, a volunteer for the charitable organization shall:

1. Show the winning face to a neutral player, who shall be a player other than the winner; and
2. Call back the winning combination while in front of the neutral player.

(4) The caller shall ask at least twice if there are any other winners before announcing the close of the game. If playing a continuation game, the caller shall ask at least twice if there are any other winners before the close of the game.

(5) If more than one (1) winner is declared in a bingo game, prizes shall be awarded as established in this subsection.

(a) Cash prizes shall be divided equally among the verified winners.

(b) If the prize is something other than cash and cannot be divided among winners, prizes of equal proportionate value shall be awarded.

Section 22. Prizes. (1) If a merchandise prize or discount is available to everyone, it shall be considered a promotional item and counted as an expense.

(2) If a merchandise prize or discount is not available to everyone, it shall be included in the prize limit established in KRS 238.545(1) at its fair market value. It shall be included in expenses for purchased prizes at actual cost. If the merchandise prize is a gaming supply, it shall be included in supplies expense at actual cost.

(3) The fair market value of bingo paper, a card-minding device, electronic pulltab device, or paper pulltabs awarded as a merchandise prize shall be the price that a patron would have paid for the same bingo paper, card-minding device, electronic pulltab device, or paper pulltab at that charitable gaming session.

(4)(a) If bingo paper is awarded as a door prize or a bingo game prize, the patron shall be given a voucher.

(b) The voucher shall be completed with:

1. The name, address, and phone number of the patron redeeming the voucher;

2. The date on which it was awarded;

3. The date on which it was redeemed;

4. The amount of paper given in exchange for the voucher; and

5. The serial number of the bingo paper.

(c) Once the voucher is completed, it shall be redeemed for the bingo paper.

(d) The charitable organization shall retain the voucher with its session records.

(5) If bingo paper is awarded as a promotional item, the description of the paper shall be listed on the program with "free" or "promotional" listed as the price. If the charitable organization also sells that type of paper, a separate set of paper with a separate serial number shall be used.

(6)(a) If a card-minding device or electronic pulltab device is awarded as a door prize or a bingo game prize, the patron shall be given a voucher.

(b) The voucher shall be completed with:

1. The name, address, and phone number of the patron redeeming the voucher;

2. The date on which it was awarded;

3. The date on which it was redeemed; and

4. The number of card-minding devices and the number of faces loaded on each device, or the number of electronic pulltab devices and credits loaded on each device, if any, given in exchange for the voucher.

(c) Once the voucher is completed, it shall be redeemed for the card-minding device or electronic pulltab device. No more than one (1) card-minding device or one (1) electronic pulltab device may be redeemed per player per session.

(d) The charitable organization shall retain the voucher with its session records.

(e) There shall be a specific button on the point of sale programmed for each type of voucher and package involving a card-minding device or electronic pulltab device.

(7) If a card-minding device is awarded as a promotional item, the description of the promotional package shall be listed on the program with "free" or "promotional" listed as the price. The point of sale shall have a specifically described discount button for this promotion.

(8) If a charitable organization offers coupons for bingo paper or a card-minding device, a voucher shall be completed when the coupon is redeemed, and the coupon and the voucher shall be retained with the charitable gaming session records.

(9) If the charitable organization sells gift certificates for bingo paper or a card-minding device, the receipts for the sale shall be counted as gaming receipts on the day they are received. When the gift certificate is redeemed, a voucher shall be completed and the gift certificate and the voucher shall be retained with the charitable gaming session records.

(10) If a paper pulltab or electronic pulltab device is awarded as a bingo prize, the person in charge of bingo payouts shall purchase the pulltabs or electronic pulltab device and any credits loaded to the device from the pulltab manager by transfer of cash from bingo payout to pulltab sales and it shall be recorded as a sale on the session records.

(11) Each bingo winner shall be determined and every prize shall be awarded and delivered on the same day on which the bingo was conducted.

(12) A voucher shall be redeemed on the same day as awarded.

(6) "Disposal" means the isolation of radioactive wastes from the biosphere inhabited by man and his food chains by emplacement in a land disposal facility.

(7) "Disposal site" means that portion of a land disposal facility that is used for disposal of waste. It consists of disposal units and a buffer zone.

Section 11. Conditions of Licenses. (1) A license issued under this administrative regulation, or a right thereunder, may be transferred, assigned, or in any manner disposed of, either voluntarily or involuntarily, through transfer of control of the license to a person. A transfer, assignment, or disposition shall occur only if the cabinet finds, after securing full information, that the transfer is in accordance with the provisions of the Act. The cabinet shall provide the approval or denial in writing in the form of a license amendment.

(2) The licensee shall submit a written statement under oath upon request of the cabinet, before termination of the license, and to enable the cabinet to determine if the license shall be modified, suspended, or revoked.

(4) The licensee shall be subject to the provisions of the Act, 902 KAR Chapter 100, and orders of the cabinet. The terms and conditions of the license shall be subject to amendment, revision, or modification.

(5) Each person licensed by the cabinet as authorized by this administrative regulation shall confine possession and use of materials to the locations and purposes authorized in the license.

(6) The licensee shall not dispose of waste until the cabinet has inspected the land disposal facility and has found it to be in conformance with the description, design, and construction described in the application for a license.

(a) Protect health or to minimize danger to life or property; and

(b) Require reports and the keeping of records and to provide for inspections of activities under the license as necessary or appropriate to effectuate the purposes of the Act and 902 KAR Chapter 100.

(8) The authority to dispose of wastes expires on the date stated in the license. An expiration date on a license applies only to the aboveground activities and to the authority to dispose of waste. Failure to renew the license shall not relieve the licensee of responsibility for carrying out site closure, postclosure observation,

Information contained in previous applications, statements, or reports filed with the cabinet under the license may be incorporated by reference if the references are clear and specific.~~

~~(3) In a case in which a licensee has filed an application in proper form for renewal of a license, the license shall not expire until the cabinet has taken action on the application for renewal.~~

~~(4) In determining if a license shall be renewed, the cabinet shall apply the criteria set forth in Section 10 of this administrative regulation.~~

~~Section 13. Contents of Application for Closure. (1) Prior to final closure of the disposal site, or as otherwise directed by the cabinet, the applicant shall submit an application to amend the license for closure. This closure application shall include a final revision and specific details of the disposal site closure plan included as part of the license application submitted under Section 6(7) of this administrative regulation that includes each of the following:~~

~~(a) Additional geologic, hydrologic, or other data pertinent to the long-term containment of emplaced wastes obtained during the operational period;~~

~~(b) The results of tests, experiments, or other analyses relating to backfill of excavated areas; closure and sealing; waste migration and interaction with emplacement media; or other tests, experiments, or analysis pertinent to the long-term containment of emplaced waste within the disposal site;~~

~~(2) Upon review and consideration of an application to amend the license for closure submitted in accordance with subsection (1) of this section, the cabinet shall issue an amendment authorizing closure if there is reasonable assurance that the long-term performance objectives of this administrative regulation shall be met.~~

~~Section 14. Postclosure Observation and Maintenance. (1) The licensee shall observe, monitor, and carry out necessary maintenance and repairs at the disposal site until the site closure is complete and the license is transferred by the cabinet in accordance with Section 15 of this administrative regulation.~~

~~Section 16. Termination of License. (1) Following a period of institutional control needed to meet the requirements found necessary under Section 10 of this administrative regulation, the licensee may apply for an amendment to terminate the license.~~

~~(2) This application shall be reviewed in accordance with the provisions of 902 KAR 100:040, Section 4.~~

~~(3) A license shall be terminated only if the cabinet finds:~~

~~(a) The institutional control requirements found necessary under Section 10(8) of this administrative regulation have been met;~~

~~(b) Additional requirements resulting from new information developed during the institutional control period have been met; and~~

~~(c) Permanent monuments or markers warning against intrusion have been installed.~~

~~Section 17. General Requirement. Land disposal facilities shall be sited, designed, operated, closed, and controlled after closure so that reasonable assurance exists that exposures to individuals are within the limits established in the performance objectives in Section 18 through Section 21 of this administrative regulation.~~

~~Section 18. Protection of the General Population from Releases of Radioactivity. A concentration of radioactive material that may be released to the general environment in groundwater, surface water, air, soil, plants, or animals shall not result in an annual dose exceeding an equivalent of twenty-five (25) millirems to the whole body, seventy-five (75) millirems to the thyroid, and twenty-five (25) millirems to any other organ of a member of the public. Reasonable effort shall be made to maintain releases of radioactivity in effluents to the general environment as low as it is reasonably achievable.~~

~~Section 19. Protection of Inadvertent Intrusion. Design, operation, and closure of the land disposal facility shall ensure protection of an individual inadvertently intruding into the disposal site and occupying the site or contacting the waste any time after active institutional controls over the disposal site are removed.~~

~~Section 20. Protection of Individuals During Operations. Operations at the land disposal facility shall be conducted in compliance with the standards for radiation protection set out in 902 KAR 100:019, except for releases of radioactivity in effluents from the disposal facility, which shall be governed by Section 18 of this administrative regulation. Every reasonable effort shall be made to maintain radiation exposures as low as is reasonably achievable.~~

~~Section 21. Stability of the Disposal Site After Closure. The disposal facility shall be sited, designed, used, operated, and closed to achieve long-term stability of the disposal site and to eliminate to the extent practicable the need for ongoing active maintenance of the disposal site following closure so that only surveillance, monitoring, or minor custodial care are required.~~

~~Section 22. Disposal Site Suitability Requirements for Land Disposal. Disposal site suitability for near-surface disposal. The following are the minimum characteristics a disposal site shall have to be acceptable for use as a near-surface disposal facility:~~

~~(1) The primary emphasis in disposal site suitability is isolation of wastes, and the disposal site features that ensure that the long-term performance objectives are met.~~

~~(2) The disposal site shall be capable of being characterized, modeled, analyzed, and monitored.~~

~~(3) Within the region where the facility is to be located, a disposal site shall be selected so that projected population growth~~ and future developments are not likely to affect the ability of the disposal facility to meet the performance objectives of this administrative regulation.

(4) Areas shall be avoided having known natural resources that, if exploited, would result in failure to meet the performance objectives of this administrative regulation.

(5) The disposal site shall be generally well drained and free of areas of flooding or frequent ponding. Waste disposal shall not take place in a 100-year flood plain, coastal high-hazard area, or wetland, as defined in U.S. Executive Order 11988, Flood plain Management Guidelines.

(6) Upstream drainage areas shall be minimized to decrease the amount of run-off that could erode or inundate waste disposal units.

(7)(a) The disposal site shall provide sufficient depth to the water table that ground water intrusion, perennial or otherwise, into the waste shall not occur.

(b) The cabinet shall consider an exception to this requirement to allow disposal below the water table if it can be conclusively shown that disposal site characteristics may result in molecular diffusion being the predominant means of radionuclide movement and the rate of movement may result in the performance objectives being met.

(c) In no case shall waste disposal be permitted in the zone of fluctuation of the water table.

(8) The hydrogeologic unit used for disposal shall not discharge ground water to the surface within the disposal site.

(9) Areas shall be avoided if tectonic processes, such as faulting, folding, seismic activity, or vulcanism may occur with a frequency and extent to significantly affect the ability of the disposal site to meet the performance objectives of this administrative regulation or may preclude defensible modeling and prediction of long-term impacts.

(10) Areas shall be avoided if surface geologic processes such as mass wasting, erosion, slumping, landsliding, or weathering occur with a frequency and extent to significantly affect the ability of the disposal site to meet the performance objectives of this administrative regulation, or may preclude defensible modeling and prediction of long-term impacts.

(11) The disposal site shall not be located where nearby facilities or activities could adversely impact the ability of the site to meet the performance objectives of this administrative regulation or significantly mask the environmental monitoring program.

Section 23. Disposal Site Design for Land Disposal. Disposal site design for near-surface disposal.

(1) Site design features shall be directed toward long-term isolation and avoidance of the need for continuing active maintenance after site closure.

(2) The disposal site design and operation shall be compatible with the disposal site closure and stabilization plan and lead to disposal site closure that provides reasonable assurance that the performance objectives shall be met.

(3) The disposal site shall be designed to complement and improve the ability of the disposal site's natural characteristics to assure that the performance objectives shall be met.

(4) Covers shall be designed to minimize water infiltration, to direct percolating or surface water away from the disposed waste, and to resist degradation by surface geologic processes and biotic activity.

(5) Surface features shall direct surface water drainage away from disposal units at velocities and gradients that shall not result in erosion that shall require ongoing active maintenance in the future.

(6) The disposal site shall be designed to minimize the contact of water with waste during storage, the contact of standing water with waste during disposal, and the contact of percolating or standing water with wastes after disposal.

Section 24. Land Disposal Facility Operation and Disposal Site Closure; Near-surface Disposal Facility Operation and Disposal Site Closure.

(1) Wastes designated as Class A in 902 KAR 100:021 shall be segregated from other wastes by placing in disposal units that are sufficiently separated from disposal units for the other waste classes so that an interaction between Class A wastes and other wastes shall not result in the failure to meet the performance objectives of this administrative regulation. This segregation is not necessary for Class A wastes if they meet the stability requirements in 902 KAR 100:021, Section 7(2).

(2) Wastes designated as Class C in 902 KAR 100:021 shall be disposed of so that the top of the waste is a minimum of five (5) meters below the top surface of the cover or shall be disposed of with intruder barriers that are designed to protect against an inadvertent intrusion for at least 500 years.

(3) Except as provided in subsection (1) of this section, only waste classified as Class A, B, or C shall be acceptable for near-surface disposal. All waste shall be disposed of in accordance with requirements of subsections (4) through (11) of this section.

(4) Wastes shall be emplaced in a manner that maintains the package integrity during emplacement, minimizes the void spaces between packages, and allows the void spaces to be filled.

(5) Void spaces between waste packages shall be filled with earth or other material to reduce future subsidence within the fill.

(6) Waste shall be placed and covered in a manner that limits the radiation dose rate at the surface of the cover to levels that at a minimum shall permit the licensee to comply with all provisions of 902 KAR 100:019, Sections 10 and 11, if the license is transferred as authorized by Section 15 of this administrative regulation.

(7) The boundaries and locations of each disposal unit shall be accurately located and mapped by means of a land survey.

(8) Near-surface disposal units shall be marked in a way that the boundaries of each unit can be easily defined.

(9) Three (3) permanent survey marker control points, referenced to United States Geological Survey (USGS) or National Geodetic Survey (NGS) survey control stations, shall be established on the site to facilitate surveys.

(10) The USGS or NGS control stations shall provide horizontal and vertical controls as checked against USGS or NGS record files.

(11) A buffer zone of land shall be maintained between any buried waste and the disposal site boundary and beneath the disposed waste. The buffer zone shall be of adequate dimensions to carry out environmental monitoring activities specified in Section 25 of this administrative regulation and take mitigative measures if needed.

(12) Closure and stabilization measures set forth in the approved site closure plan shall be carried out as each disposal unit is filled and covered.

(13) Active waste disposal operations shall not have an adverse effect on completed closure and stabilization measures.

(14) Only wastes containing or contaminated with radioactive materials shall be disposed of at the disposal site.

(15) A proposal for disposal of waste that is not generally acceptable for near-surface disposal because the waste form and disposal methods need to be different, and in general more stringent than those specified for Class C waste, may be submitted to the cabinet for approval.

Section 25. Environmental Monitoring. (1)(a) If a license application is submitted, the applicant shall have conducted a preoperational monitoring program to provide basic environmental data on the disposal site characteristics.

(b) The applicant shall obtain information about the ecology, meteorology, climate, hydrology, geology, geochemistry, and seismology of the disposal site.

(c) For those characteristics that are subject to seasonal variation, data shall cover at least a twelve (12) month period.

(2)(a) During the land disposal facility site construction and operation, the licensee shall maintain an environmental monitoring program.

(b) Measurements and observations shall be made and recorded to provide data to evaluate the potential health and environmental impacts during both the construction and the operation of the facility and to enable the evaluation of long-term effects and the need for mitigative measures.

(c) The monitoring system shall be capable of providing early warning of releases of radionuclides from the disposal site before they leave the site boundary.

(3) After the disposal site is closed, the licensee responsible for postoperational surveillance of the disposal site shall maintain a monitoring system based on the operating history and the closure and stabilization of the disposal site. The monitoring system shall be capable of providing early warning of releases of radionuclides from the disposal site before they leave the site boundary.

(4) The licensee shall have plans for taking corrective measures if the environmental monitoring program detects migration of radionuclides that would indicate that the performance objectives may not be met.

Section 26. Alternative Requirements for Design and Operations. The cabinet may, upon request or on its own initiative, authorize provisions other than those set forth in Sections 23 through 25 of this administrative regulation for the segregation and disposal of waste and for the design and operation of a land disposal facility on a specific basis if it finds reasonable assurance of compliance with the performance objectives of this administrative regulation.

Section 27. Institutional Requirements. (1) Land ownership. Disposal of radioactive waste received from other persons may be permitted only on land owned, in fee, by the Commonwealth of Kentucky or federal government.

(2) Institutional control.

(a) The land owner or custodial agency shall carry out an institutional control program to physically control access to the disposal site following transfer of control of the disposal site from the disposal site operator.

(b) The institutional control program shall also include, in part, carrying out an environmental monitoring program at the disposal site, periodic surveillance, minor custodial care, and other requirements as determined by the cabinet in accordance with 10 C.F.R. 61.59, and administration of funds to cover the costs for these activities.

(c) The period of controls shall be determined by the cabinet in accordance with 10 C.F.R. 61.59, but controls may not be relied upon for more than 100 years following transfer of control of the disposal site to the owner.

Section 28. Alternative Requirements for Waste Classification and Characteristics. The cabinet licensing a low-level disposal facility may, upon request or on its own initiative, authorize other provisions for the classification and characteristics of waste on a specific basis if, after evaluation of the specific characteristics of the waste, disposal site, or method of disposal, it finds reasonable assurance of compliance with the performance objectives specified in this administrative regulation.

Section 29. Applicant Qualifications and Assurances. Each applicant shall show that he either possesses the necessary funds or has reasonable assurance of obtaining the necessary funds or, by a combination of the two (2), to cover the estimated costs of conducting all licensed activities over the planned operating life of the project, including costs of construction and disposal.

Section 30. Funding for Disposal Site Closure and Stabilization. (1) The applicant shall provide assurances prior to the commencement of operations that sufficient funds shall be available to carry out disposal site closure and stabilization, including:

(a) Decontamination or dismantlement of land disposal facility structures;

(b) Closure and stabilization of the disposal site so that following transfer of the disposal site to the site owner, the need for ongoing active maintenance shall be eliminated to the extent practicable and only minor custodial care, surveillance, and monitoring shall be required; and

(c) Assurances shall be based on cabinet-approved cost estimates reflecting the cabinet-approved plan for disposal site closure and stabilization. The applicant's cost estimates shall take into account total costs that would be incurred if an independent contractor were hired to perform the closure and stabilization work.

(2) In order to avoid unnecessary duplication and expense, the cabinet may accept financial sureties that have been consolidated with earmarked financial or surety arrangements established to meet requirements of other federal or state agencies or local governing bodies for the decontamination, closure, and stabilization. If the cabinet accepts these arrangements they shall be adequate to satisfy these requirements and that the portion of the surety that covers the closure of the disposal site that shall be clearly identified and committed for use in accomplishing these activities.

(3) The licensee's surety mechanism shall be submitted annually for review by the cabinet to assure that sufficient funds are available for completion of the closure plan, assuming that the work has to be performed by an independent contractor.

(4) The amount of surety liability shall change in accordance with the predicted cost of future closure and stabilization. Factors affecting closure and stabilization cost estimates include:

(a) Inflation;

(b) Increases in the amount of disturbed land;

(c) Changes in engineering plans;

(d) Closure and stabilization that has already been accomplished; and

(e) Other conditions affecting costs. This shall yield a surety that is at least sufficient at all times to cover the costs of closure of the disposal units that are expected to be used before the next license renewal.

(5)(a) The term of the surety mechanism shall be open unless it can be demonstrated that another arrangement would provide an equivalent level of assurance.

1. This assurance shall be provided with a surety mechanism written for a specified period of time (for example, five (5) years) yet which shall be automatically renewed unless the party who issues the surety notifies the cabinet and the beneficiary (the site owner) and the principal (the licensee) not less than ninety (90) days prior to the renewal date of the intention not to renew.

2. In this situation the licensee shall submit a replacement surety within thirty (30) days after notification of cancellation.

(b) If the licensee fails to provide a replacement surety acceptable to the cabinet, the site owner may collect on the original surety.

(6)(a) Proof of forfeiture shall not be necessary to collect the surety so that if the licensee could not provide an acceptable replacement surety within the required time, the surety shall be automatically collected prior to its expiration.

(b) The conditions described in this section shall be clearly stated on a surety instrument that is not open-ended, and shall be agreed to by all parties. Liability under the surety mechanism shall remain in effect until the closure and stabilization program has been completed and approved by the cabinet and the license has been transferred to the site owner.

(7)(a) Financial surety arrangements acceptable to the cabinet include:

1. Surety bonds;

2. Cash deposits;

3. Certificates of deposit;

4. Deposits of government securities;

5. Escrow accounts;

6. Irrevocable letters or lines of credit;

7. Trust funds; and

8. Combinations of the above.

(b) Self-insurance, or an arrangement that essentially constitutes pledging the assets of the licensee, shall not satisfy the surety requirement for private sector applicants because this does not provide additional assurance other than that which already exists through license requirements.

Section 31. Financial Assurances for Institutional Controls. (1) Prior to the issuance of the license, the applicant shall provide for cabinet review and approval or denial a copy of a binding arrangement, such as a lease, between the applicant and the disposal site owner that ensures that sufficient funds shall be available to cover the costs of monitoring and required maintenance during the institutional control period. The binding arrangement shall be reviewed periodically by the cabinet to ensure that changes in inflation, technology, and disposal facility operations are reflected in the arrangements.

(2) Subsequent changes to the binding arrangement specified in subsection (1) of this section relevant to institutional control shall be submitted to the cabinet for approval or denial.

Section 32. Maintenance of Records, Reports, and Transfers.

(1) Each licensee shall maintain records and make reports in connection with the licensed activities as required by the conditions of the license or by 902 KAR Chapter 100 or orders of the cabinet.

(2)(a) A record required by 902 KAR Chapter 100 or by license conditions shall be maintained for a period specified by the appropriate administrative regulation in 902 KAR Chapter 100 or by license condition.

(b) If a retention period is not otherwise specified, these records shall be maintained and transferred to the officials specified in subsection (5) of this section as a condition of license termination unless the cabinet otherwise authorizes disposition.

(3)(a) A record that shall be maintained as required by this section shall be the original, a reproduced copy, or microform if this reproduced copy or microform is capable of producing copy that is clear and legible at the end of the required retention period.

(b)1. The record may also be stored in electronic media with the capability of producing legible, accurate, and complete records during the retention period.

2. Records such as letters, drawings, and specifications shall include all pertinent information such as stamps, initials, and signatures.

(c) The licensee shall maintain adequate safeguards against tampering with and loss of records.

(4) If there is a conflict between the cabinet's administrative regulations, license condition, or other written cabinet approval or authorization pertaining to the retention period for the same type of record, the longest retention period specified shall take precedence.

(5) In addition to the requirements of subsections (1) through (4) of this section, copies of records of the location and the quantity of radioactive wastes contained in the disposal site shall be transferred upon license termination to the chief executive of the nearest municipality, the chief executive of the county in which the facility is located, the county zoning board or land development and planning agency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, other Kentucky local agencies, and federal governmental agencies as designated by the cabinet when the license is terminated.

(6) Following receipt and acceptance of a shipment of radioactive waste, the licensee shall record:

(a) The date that the shipment is received at the disposal facility;

(b) The date of disposal of the waste;

(c) A traceable shipment manifest number;

(d) A description of any engineered barrier or structural overpack provided for disposal of the waste;

(e) The location in the disposal site;

(f) The condition of the waste packages as received;

(g) Any discrepancies between materials listed on the manifest and those received;

(h) The volume of pallets, bracing, or other shipping or onsite generated materials that are contaminated, and are disposed of as contaminated or suspect materials; and

(i) Any evidence of leaking or damaged packages or radiation or contamination levels in excess of limits specified in U.S. Department of Transportation and 902 KAR Chapter 100.

(7) The licensee shall briefly describe repackaging operations of the waste packages included in the shipment, plus other information required by the cabinet as a license condition.

(8) The licensee shall retain these records until the cabinet transfers or terminates the license that authorizes the activities established in this section.

(9) Each licensee authorized to dispose of radioactive waste received from other persons shall file a copy of its financial report or a certified financial statement annually with the cabinet in order to update the information base for determining financial qualifications.

(10)(a) Each licensee authorized to dispose of waste materials received from other persons, authorized by this administrative regulation, shall submit an annual report to the cabinet. Reports shall be submitted by the end of the first calendar quarter of each year for the preceding year.

(b) The reports shall include:

1. Specification of the quantity of each of the principal radionuclides released to unrestricted areas in liquid and in airborne effluents during the preceding year;

2. The results of the environmental monitoring program;

3. A summary of licensee disposal unit survey and maintenance activities;

4. A summary, by waste class, of activities and quantities of radionuclides disposed of;

5. Instances in which observed site characteristics were significantly different from those described in the application for a license; and

6. Other information the cabinet may require to protect public health and safety.

(c) The report shall specifically cover instances in which the quantities of radioactive materials released during the reporting period, monitoring results, or maintenance performed are significantly different from those expected in the materials previously reviewed as part of the licensing action.

(11)(a) In addition to the other requirements of this section, the licensee shall store or have stored, manifest and other information pertaining to receipt and disposal of radioactive waste in an electronic recordkeeping system.

(b) The manifest information that shall be stored electronically is:

1. That required in 902 KAR 100:021, Sections 9 and 10, with the exception of shipper and carrier telephone numbers and shipper and consignee certifications; and

2. The information required in subsection (6) of this section.

(c) As specified in license conditions, the licensee shall report the stored information, or subsets of the information, on a computer-readable medium.

Section 33. Tests at Land Disposal Facilities. Each licensee shall perform, or allow the cabinet to perform, any tests appropriate or necessary for the administration of this administrative regulation, including, in part, tests of:

(1) Radioactive wastes and facilities used for the receipt, storage, treatment, handling, or disposal of radioactive wastes;

(2) Radiation detection and monitoring instruments; and

(3) Other equipment and devices used in connection with the receipt, possession, handling, treatment, storage, or disposal of radioactive waste.

Section 34. Cabinet Inspections of Land Disposal Facilities. (1) Each licensee shall:

(a) Afford to the cabinet at all reasonable times opportunity to inspect radioactive waste not yet disposed of and the premises, equipment, operations, and facilities in which radioactive wastes are received, possessed, handled, treated, stored, or disposed;

(b) Provide the cabinet with the necessary equipment to meet the activities, such as monitoring, surveying, and recordkeeping as required by this section; and

(4) The written instructions required for exclusive use shipments shall be sufficient so that, if followed, they will cause the carrier to avoid actions that will unnecessarily delay delivery or unnecessarily result in increased radiation levels or radiation exposure to transport workers or members of the general public.

Section 18. Assumption as to Unknown Properties. If the isotopic abundance, mass, concentration, degree of moderation, or other pertinent property of fissile material in any package is not known, the licensee shall package the fissile material as if the unknown properties have credible values that will cause the maximum neutron multiplication.

Section 19. Opening Instructions. Before delivery of a package to a carrier for transport, the licensee shall ensure that any special instructions needed to safely open the package have been sent to, or otherwise made available to, the consignee for the consignee's use in accordance with 902 KAR 100:019, Section 28(5).

Section 20. Quality Assurance Requirements. (1) The requirements in Sections 20 through 28 shall apply to design, purchase, fabrication, handling, shipping, storing, cleaning, assembly, inspection, testing, operation, maintenance, repair, and modification of components of packaging important to safety. As used in this administrative regulation, quality assurance comprises all those planned and systematic actions necessary to provide adequate confidence that a system or component will perform satisfactorily in service.

(2) Quality assurance includes quality control, which comprises those quality assurance actions related to control of the physical characteristics and quality of the material or component to predetermined requirements.

(3) The licensee, certificate holder, and applicant for a CoC are responsible for the quality assurance requirements as they apply to design, fabrication, testing, and modification of packaging.

(5) A licensee, certificate holder, and applicant for a CoC shall:

(a) Establish, maintain, and execute a quality assurance program satisfying each of the applicable criteria of 10 C.F.R. 71.101 through 71.137 and satisfying any specific provisions that are applicable to the licensee's activities including procurement of packaging; and

(b) Execute the applicable criteria in a graded approach to an extent that is commensurate with the quality assurance requirement's importance to safety.

(6) A licensee shall, before the use of a package for the shipment of licensed material subject to this administrative regulation, obtain U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission approval of its quality assurance program. Using an appropriate method listed in 10 C.F.R. 71.1(a), a licensee shall file a description of its quality assurance program, including a discussion of which requirements of this administrative regulation are applicable and how they will be satisfied, by submitting the description to: Attention: Document Control Desk, Director, Spent Fuel Project Office, Office of Nuclear Material Safety and Safeguards.

(3) The persons and organizations performing quality assurance functions shall have sufficient authority and organizational freedom to:

(a) Identify quality problems;

(b) Initiate, recommend, or provide solutions; and

(c) Verify implementation of solutions.

(4) While the term "licensee" is used, the requirements in this section shall be applicable to whatever design, fabrication, assembly, and testing of the package is accomplished with respect to a package before the time a package approval is issued.

Section 22. Quality Assurance Program. (1) The licensee, certificate holder, and applicant for a Certificate of Compliance (CoC) shall establish, at the earliest practicable time consistent with the schedule for accomplishing the activities, a quality assurance program that complies with the requirements of 10 C.F.R. 71.101 through 71.137. The licensee, certificate holder, and applicant for a CoC shall document the quality assurance program by written procedures or instructions and shall carry out the program in accordance with those procedures throughout the period during which the packaging is used. The licensee, certificate holder, and applicant for a CoC shall identify the material and components to be covered by the quality assurance program, the major organizations participating in the program, and the designated functions of these organizations.

(2) The licensee, certificate holder, and applicant for a CoC, through its quality assurance program, shall provide control over activities affecting the quality of the identified materials and components to an extent consistent with their importance to safety, and as necessary to assure conformance to the approved design of each individual package used for the shipment of radioactive material. The licensee, certificate holder, and applicant for a CoC shall assure that activities affecting quality are accomplished under suitably controlled conditions. Controlled conditions shall include the use of appropriate equipment; suitable environmental conditions for accomplishing the activity, such as adequate cleanliness; and assurance that all prerequisites for the given activity have been satisfied. The licensee, certificate holder, and applicant for a CoC shall take into account the need for special controls, processes, test equipment, tools, and skills to attain the required quality, and the need for verification of quality by inspection and test.

(3) The licensee, certificate holder, and applicant for a CoC shall base the requirements and procedures of its quality assurance program on the following conditions concerning the complexity and proposed use of the package and its components:

(a) The impact of malfunction or failure of the item to safety;

(b) The design and fabrication complexity or uniqueness of the item;

(c) The need for special controls and surveillance over processes and equipment;

(d) The degree to which functional compliance can be demonstrated by inspection or test; and

(e) The quality history and degree of standardization of the item.

(4) The licensee, certificate holder, and applicant for a CoC shall provide for indoctrination and training of personnel performing activities affecting quality, as necessary, to assure that suitable proficiency is achieved and maintained.

(5) The licensee, certificate holder, and applicant for a CoC shall review the status and adequacy of the quality assurance program at established intervals. Management of other organizations participating in the quality assurance program shall review regularly the status and adequacy of that part of the quality assurance program they are executing.

Section 23. Handling, Storage, and Shipping Control. The licensee, certificate holder, and applicant for a CoC shall establish measures to control, in accordance with instructions, the handling, storage, shipping, cleaning, and preservation of materials and equipment to be used in packaging to prevent damage or deterioration. If necessary for particular products, special protective environments, such as inert gas atmosphere, and specific moisture content and temperature levels shall be specified and provided.

Section 24. Inspection, Test and Operating Status. (1) The licensee, certificate holder, and applicant for a CoC shall establish measures to indicate, by the use of markings such as stamps, tags, labels, routing cards, or other suitable means, the status of inspections and tests performed upon individual items of the packaging. These measures shall provide for the identification of items that have satisfactorily passed required inspections and tests, where necessary to preclude inadvertent by-passing of the inspections and tests.

(2) The licensee shall establish measures to identify the operating status of components of the packaging, such as tagging valves and switches, to prevent inadvertent operation.

Section 25. Nonconforming Materials, Parts, or Components. The licensee, certificate holder, and applicant for a CoC shall establish measures to control materials, parts, or components that do not conform to the licensee's requirements to prevent their inadvertent use or installation. These measures shall include, as appropriate, procedures for identification, documentation, segregation, disposition, and notification to affected organizations. Nonconforming items shall be reviewed and accepted, rejected, repaired, or reworked in accordance with documented procedures.

~~Section 26. Corrective Action. The licensee, certificate holder, and applicant for a CoC shall establish measures to assure that conditions adverse to quality, such as deficiencies, deviations, defective material and equipment, and nonconformances, are promptly identified and corrected. If a significant condition adverse to quality exists, the measures shall assure that the cause of the condition is determined and corrective action taken to preclude repetition. The identification of the significant condition adverse to quality, the cause of the condition, and the corrective action taken shall be documented and reported to appropriate levels of management.~~

(1) Provide a brief summary of:

(a) What this administrative regulation does: This administrative regulation incorporates by reference application and compliance forms used to permit or register air contaminant sources in Kentucky. Air contaminant sources shall be required to apply for a permit, permit revision, permit renewal, or registration pursuant to 401 KAR 52:050, Section 4(1); 52:030, Section 4(1); 52:040, Section 4(1); or 52:070, Section 7(1), as applicable.

(c) How this administrative regulation conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes: KRS 224.10-100(5) authorizes the Energy and Environment Cabinet to promulgate administrative regulations for the prevention, abatement, and control of air pollution. This administrative regulation establishes forms utilized for permitting and registering air contaminant sources in Kentucky. By permitting and registering air contaminant sources, the Cabinet can continue to enforce air quality regulations and air quality in Kentucky will continue to improve.

(d) How this administrative regulation currently assists or will assist in the effective administration of the statutes: This administrative regulation assists in the effective administration of the statutes by requiring information about a source to determine applicability of federal and state air regulations.

(2) If this is an amendment to an existing administrative regulation, provide a brief summary of:

(a) How the amendment will change this existing administrative regulation: This proposed amendment makes changes to the forms for clarification purposes and adds language to the administrative regulation to allow for a 6 month period where previous versions of the forms can be submitted.

(b) The necessity of the amendment to this administrative regulation: This proposed amendment is necessary clarify information contained on the forms and to all the regulated community a 6 month period to use the old forms in order to reduce paperwork burden for applications that are already in the process of being completed.

(c) How the amendment conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes: KRS 224.10-100(5) authorizes the Energy and Environment Cabinet to promulgate administrative regulations for the prevention, abatement, and control of air pollution. This amendment conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes by clarifying information in the permit and registration application forms for emissions from air contaminant sources.

(d) How the amendment will assist in the effective administration of statutes: The proposed amendment will assist in the effective administration of the statutes by requiring information about a source to determine applicability of federal and state regulations.

(3) List the type and number of individuals, businesses, organizations, or state and local governments affected by this administrative regulation. The proposed administrative regulation incorporates by reference the application forms, which air contaminant sources are required to use when applying for a permit, permit revision, permit renewal, or registration in the Commonwealth of Kentucky. All sources in Kentucky subject to 401 KAR 52:020, 52:030, 52:040, and 52:070 are required to use the forms in this administrative regulation.

(4) Provide an analysis of how the entities identified in question (3) will be impacted by either the implementation of this administrative regulation, if new, or by the change, if it is an amendment, including:

(a) List the actions that each of the regulated entities identified in question (3) will have to take to comply with this administrative regulation or amendment: Air contaminant sources will use the forms incorporated by reference in this administrative regulation when applying for a permit, permit revision, permit renewal, or registration for an air contaminant source in the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

(b) In complying with this administrative regulation or amendment, how much will it cost each of the entities identified in question (3): There are no additional costs for complying with this administrative regulation because it updates and streamlines the permitting and registration forms that are incorporated by reference.

(c) As a result of compliance, what benefits will accrue to the entities identified in question (3): The streamlined forms will be easier to use, will provide clarity, uniformity, and ensure that regulated air pollutants are regulated properly. The forms can be filled out and filed electronically. In addition, this amendment allows for older forms to be used for a period of 6 months for any applications that have regulated entities have already started internally.

(5) Provide an estimate of how much it will cost to implement this administrative regulation:

(a) Initially: There will be no additional costs to implement the proposed administrative regulation initially.

(b) On a continuing basis: There will be no additional costs to implement the proposed administrative regulation on a continuing basis.

(6) What is the source of the funding to be used for the implementation and enforcement of this administrative regulation? The Division for Air Quality's current operating budget will be used to implement the proposed administrative regulation.

(8) State whether or not this administrative regulation establishes any fees or directly or indirectly increases any fees. This administrative regulation does not establish any fees, nor does it directly or indirectly increase any fees.

(9) TIERING: Is tiering applied? No. The proposed administrative regulation incorporates by reference the forms that are used by the cabinet for permitting and registering air contaminant sources. However, tiering is provided within the cabinet's permitting program in that sources whose emissions fall below certain levels are required to apply for registration, rather than a permit.

FISCAL NOTE ON STATE OR LOCAL GOVERNMENT

1. What units, parts or divisions of state or local government (including cities, counties, fire departments, or school districts) will be impacted by this administrative regulation? Any unit, part, or division or local government that operates an air contaminant source required to apply for a permit or registration under 401 KAR 52:020, 52:030, 52:040, or 52:070 would use the forms incorporated by reference in this administrative regulation. The Division for Air Quality will use the forms incorporated by reference in this administrative regulation to permit and register air contaminant sources in Kentucky.

2. Identify each state or federal statute or federal regulation that requires or authorizes action taken by the administrative regulation. KRS 224.10-100(5), 224.20-100, 40 C.F.R. Part 70.

3. Estimate the effect of this administrative regulation on the expenditures and revenues of a state or local government agency (including cities, counties, fire departments, or school districts) for the first full year the regulation is to be in effect.

(d) How much will it cost to administer this program for subsequent years? The Division for Air Quality's operating budget will be used to administer the permitting program for subsequent years.

Note: If specific dollar estimates cannot be determined, provide a brief narrative to explain the fiscal impacts of the administrative regulation.

Revenues (+/-): There is no known effect on current revenues.

Expenditures (+/-): There is no known effect on current expenditures.

Other Explanation: There is no further explanation.

FEDERAL MANDATE ANALYSIS COMPARISON

1. Federal statute or regulation constituting the federal mandate. The federal mandate for permit applications is contained in 40 C.F.R. 70.5(c).

2. State compliance standards. This administrative regulation contains permit and registration forms used by sources subject to 401 KAR 52:020, 52:030, 52:040, and 52:070.

3. Minimum or uniform standards contained in the federal mandate. 40 C.F.R. 70.5(c) requires information to be submitted in a standard application form.

4. Will this administrative regulation impose stricter requirements, or additional or different responsibilities or requirements, than those required by the federal mandate? Yes. The requirement for air contaminant sources to use the same forms for permitting and registration is different than the federal mandate.

5. Justification for the imposition of the stricter standard, or additional or different responsibilities or requirements. The cabinet is requiring the use of the same forms for permitting and registration to ensure consistency in protecting human health and the environment.

(2) If this is an amendment to an existing administrative regulation, provide a brief summary of:

(a) How the amendment will change this existing administrative regulation: This proposed amendment retains the threshold for VOC and NOx emissions in ozone nonattainment and maintenance areas, makes amendments to be consistent with KRS 13A, and retains the applicability requirements in Section 1.

(b) The necessity of the amendment to this administrative regulation: This proposed amendment is necessary to be consistent with the requirements of KRS 13A, and to not be overly burdensome by requiring an emission survey of sources with less than 25 tpy of VOC or NOx.

(c) How the amendment conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes: This amendment conforms to the authorizing statutes by making amendments to be consistent with KRS 13A and requiring information from air contaminant sources that are not permitted in accordance with 401 KAR 52:020, 52:030, or 52:040.

(d) How the amendment will assist in the effective administration of statutes: The proposed amended administrative regulation will assist in the effective administration of the statute by requiring air contaminant sources to submit information to the cabinet, which will allow the cabinet to accurately determine the applicability of state and federal regulations.

(c) As a result of compliance, what benefits will accrue to the entities identified in question (3): By complying with this administrative regulation, entities will be registered or permitted, as appropriate. This will help regulated entities to know the applicable requirements for the air contaminant source, and improve compliance with those requirements. This amendment will also lead to continued improvement in air quality in Kentucky.

(5) Provide an estimate of how much it will cost to implement this administrative regulation:

(a) Initially: The Division will not incur any additional costs for the implementation of this administrative regulation.

REGULATORY IMPACT ANALYSIS AND TIERING STATEMENT

(1) Provide a brief summary of:

(a) What this administrative regulation does:

This administrative regulation establishes five levels of care based upon the needs of a child for whom the Cabinet for Health and Family Services has legal responsibility, a payment rate for each level, gatekeeper responsibilities, provider requirements, procedures for classification at the appropriate level of care, and procedures for determination of components of the model program costs analysis.

(b) The necessity of this administrative regulation: This administrative regulation is necessary to establish the policy and procedures for placement of a child in the custody of the cabinet with a private child care provider, levels of care and related payments, responsibilities and requirements of the gatekeeper and private provider, and rate setting methodology.

(c) How this administrative regulation conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes: This administrative regulation conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes by establishing the levels of care and associated payments for a private child care placement.

(d) How this administrative regulation currently assists or will assist in the effective administration of the statutes: This administrative regulation assists with the effective administration of the statutes through its incorporation of the methodology regarding the placement of a child in the custody of the cabinet with a private child care provider, procedures concerning the model program cost analysis, provider and gatekeeper requirements, levels of care, and payment rate for each level of care.

(2) If this is an amendment to an existing administrative regulation, provide a brief summary of:

(a) How the amendment will change this existing administrative regulation: The amendment to this administrative regulation increases the payment rates for children who are assessed as having levels of care IV and V, and who are placed with a private residential child-caring facility; and children who are placed in emergency shelters. In addition, the administrative regulation makes technical corrections in accordance with KRS Chapter 13A, including alignment with 2018 Ky. Acts ch. 159 (a.k.a., House Bill 1). The amended-after-comment version makes technical corrections to the administrative regulation and updates to the incorporated materials as a result of agency comments and comments from the provider association, the Children's Alliance.

(b) The necessity of the amendment to this administrative regulation: This amendment is necessary to adjust reimbursement for children placed in residential child-caring facilities to better reflect actual costs of providers. The rate increase is anticipated to assist with provider capacity, thereby better assuring placement options and quality care for children in state custody. Without these placement options, children risk placement in more costly, restrictive settings or, conversely, in settings that do not otherwise meet the needs of the children. The health and welfare of said children are jeopardized without the payment rate increase, in addition to threats to federal child welfare funding due to an inadequate service array for children needing out-of-home care. Further amendment addressed technical corrections within the regulation to ensure uniformity.

(c) How the amendment conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes: The amendment conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes by adjusting residential child-caring facility payment rates in accordance with 2018 Ky. Acts ch. 169.

(d) How the amendment will assist in the effective administration of the statutes: The amendment will assist in the effective administration of the statutes by enhancing provider payment rates so that they are more consistent with actual provider costs, thereby better facilitating placement options and preserving the health and welfare of children in the custody of the cabinet.

(3) List the type and number of individuals, businesses, organizations, or state and local governments affected by this administrative regulation:

The cabinet maintains a monthly average of 1,287 children who are placed in emergency shelters and are assessed as needing levels of care IV or V in residential child-caring facility placements.

(4) Provide an analysis of how the entities identified in question (3) will be impacted by either the implementation of this administrative regulation, if new, or by the change, if it is an amendment, including:

(a) List the actions that each of the regulated entities identified in question (3) will have to take to comply with this administrative regulation or amendment: The amendment to this administrative regulation requires no new action on the part of regulated entities.

(b) In complying with this administrative regulation or amendment, how much will it cost each of the entities identified in question (3):

The amendment to this administrative regulation imposes no new or additional costs on regulated entities.

(c) As a result of compliance, what benefits will accrue to the entities identified in question (3): Residential child-caring facilities will benefit from the payment rate increase implemented through the amendment to this administrative regulation. The effect of the regulatory amendment will preserve the health and welfare of children in the custody of the cabinet.

(5) Provide an estimate of how much it will cost the administrative body to implement this administrative regulation:

(a) Initially: In accordance with 2018 Ky. Acts ch. 169, residential child-caring facilities, including emergency shelters, will realize payment rate increases. The cabinet has identified approximately $7.3 million, a combination of federal, general, agency, and restricted funds, within its existing appropriations to support the rate increase.

(b) On a continuing basis: The cabinet projects the per diem increases are within appropriations; however, the administrative body will continually monitor its costs to make any adjustments necessary to maintain a comprehensive service array within available funding.

(6) What is the source of the funding to be used for the implementation and enforcement of this administrative regulation: The sources of funding include federal Title IV-E (of the Social Security Act) foster care maintenance, general funds, and agency and restricted funds derived from the Temporary Assistance for Needy Family (TANF) block grant and Medicaid.

(7) Provide an assessment of whether an increase in fees or funding will be necessary to implement this administrative regulation, if new, or by the change if it is an amendment: Additional funding was appropriated in 2018 Ky. Acts ch. 169.

(8) State whether or not this administrative regulation established any fees or directly or indirectly increased any fees: This administrative regulation does not establish any fees or directly or indirectly increase any fees.

(9) TIERING: Is tiering applied? Tiering is not applied, because this administrative regulation will be implemented in a like manner statewide.

FINANCE AND ADMINISTRATION CABINET Department of Revenue (Amendment)

103 KAR 16:270. Apportionment; receipts[sales] factor.

RELATES TO: KRS 141.120, 141.040[(5)(b)4], 141.206

STATUTORY AUTHORITY: KRS 131.130, 141.018, 141.120[(4)(b)]

NECESSITY, FUNCTION, AND CONFORMITY: KRS 131.130(1) authorizes the Department of Revenue to promulgate administrative regulations to administer and enforce Kentucky's tax laws. KRS 141.120(9)[KRS 141.120(8)] requires that all apportionable[business] income of multi-state corporations be apportioned to Kentucky by multiplying the income by a fraction, [the numerator of which is the property factor plus the payroll factor plus a weighted sales factor and the denominator of which is four (4)]. KRS 141.120(11)(d)[(4)(b)] authorizes the cabinet to promulgate administrative regulations providing how to determine the receipts[sales] factor used in the multi-state apportionable[business] income apportionment formula. This administrative regulation provides guidelines for determining the receipts[sales] factor of a multistate corporation.

Section 1. Definitions.

(1) "Billing address" means the location indicated in the books and records of the taxpayer as the primary mailing address relating to a customer's account as of the time of the transaction as kept in good faith in the normal course of business and not for tax avoidance purposes.

(2) "Broadcaster" means a taxpayer that is a television broadcast network, a cable program network, or a television distribution company. The term "broadcaster" does not include a platform distribution company.

(3) "Broadcast customer" means a person, corporation, partnership, limited liability company, or other entity, such as an advertiser or a platform distribution company, that has a direct connection or contractual relationship with the broadcaster under which revenue is derived by a broadcaster.

(4) "Business customer" means a customer that is a business operating in any form, including a sole proprietorship. Sales to a non-profit organization, to a trust, to the U.S. Government, to a foreign, state or local government, or to an agency or instrumentality of that government are treated as sales to a business customer and must be assigned consistent with the rules for those sales.

(5) "Code" means the Internal Revenue Code as defined by KRS 141.010(14).

(6) "Film programming" means one (1) or more performances, events, or productions (or segments of performances, events, or productions) intended to be distributed for visual and auditory perception, including news, entertainment, sporting events, plays, stories, or other literary, commercial, educational, or artistic works.

(7) "Individual customer" means a customer that is not a business customer.

(8) "Intangible property" generally means property that is not physical or whose representation by physical means is merely incidental and includes, without limitation, copyrights; patents; trademarks; trade names; brand names; franchises; licenses; trade secrets; trade dress; information; know-how; methods; programs; procedures; systems; formulae; processes; technical data; designs; licenses; literary, musical, or artistic compositions; information; ideas; contract rights including broadcast rights; agreements not to compete; goodwill and going concern value; securities; and computer software, except as otherwise provided in this administrative regulation.

(9) "Place of order," means the physical location from which a customer places an order for a sale other than a sale of tangible personal property from a taxpayer, resulting in a contract with the taxpayer.

(10) "Platform distribution company" means a cable service provider, a direct broadcast satellite system, an Internet content distributor, or any other distributor that directly charges viewers for access to any film programming.

(11) "Population" means the most recent population data maintained by the U.S. Census Bureau for the year in question as of the close of the taxable period.

(12) "Related member" is defined by KRS 141.205(g).

(13) "State where a contract of sale is principally managed by the customer," means the primary location at which an employee or other representative of a customer serves as the primary contact person for the taxpayer with respect to the day-to-day execution and performance of a contract entered into by the taxpayer with the customer.

Section 2. Additional Principles.

(1) Year to year consistency. If the taxpayer departs from or modifies the basis for excluding or including gross receipts in the receipts factor used in returns for prior years, the taxpayer shall disclose in the return for the current year the nature and extent of the modification.

(2) State to state consistency. If the returns or reports filed by the taxpayer with all states to which the taxpayer reports are not uniform in the inclusion or exclusion of gross receipts, the taxpayer shall disclose in its Kentucky return the nature and extent of the variance.

(3) Denominator. The denominator of the receipts factor shall include the gross receipts derived by the taxpayer from transactions and activity in the regular course of its trade or business, except gross receipts excluded under this administrative regulation.

(4) Numerator. The numerator of the receipts factor shall include gross receipts attributable to this state and derived by the taxpayer from transactions and activity in the regular course of its trade or business, except gross receipts excluded under this administrative regulation.

Section 3. Sales of Tangible Personal Property in This State.

(1) Gross receipts from sales of tangible personal property (except sales to the United States Government) are in this state if the property is delivered or shipped to a purchaser within this state regardless of the f.o.b. point or other conditions of sale.

(2) Property shall be deemed to be delivered or shipped to a purchaser within this state if the recipient is located in this state, even though the property is ordered from outside this state.

Example. The taxpayer, with inventory in State A, sold $100,000 of its products to a purchaser having branch stores in several states, including Kentucky. The order for the purchase was placed by the purchaser's central purchasing department located in State B. $25,000 of the purchase order was shipped directly to purchaser's branch store in Kentucky. The branch store in Kentucky is the purchaser with respect to $25,000 of the taxpayer's sales.

(3) Property is delivered or shipped to a purchaser within this state if the shipment terminates in this state, even though the property is subsequently transferred by the purchaser to another state.

Example. The taxpayer makes a sale to a purchaser who maintains a central warehouse in Kentucky at which all merchandise purchases are received. The purchaser reships the goods to its branch stores in other states for sale. All of the taxpayer's products shipped to the purchaser's warehouse in Kentucky constitute property delivered or shipped to a purchaser within Kentucky.

(4) The term "purchaser within this state" shall include the ultimate recipient of the property if the taxpayer in this state, at the designation of the purchaser, delivers to or has the property shipped to the ultimate recipient within this state.

Example. A taxpayer in Kentucky sold merchandise to a purchaser in State A. Taxpayer directed the manufacturer or supplier of the merchandise in State B to ship the merchandise to the purchaser's customer in Kentucky pursuant to purchaser's instructions. The sale by the taxpayer is in Kentucky.

(5) When property being shipped by a seller from the state of origin to a consignee in another state is diverted while en route to a purchaser in this state, the sales are in this state.

Example. The taxpayer, a produce grower in State A, begins shipment of perishable produce to the purchaser's place of business in State B. While en route, the produce is diverted to the purchaser's place of business in Kentucky in which state the taxpayer is subject to tax. The sale by the taxpayer is attributed to Kentucky.

Section 4. Sales of Tangible Personal Property to the United States Government. Gross receipts from sales of tangible personal property to the United States Government are in this state if the property is shipped from an office, store, warehouse, factory, or other place of storage in this state. For the purposes of this administrative regulation, only sales for which the United States Government makes direct payment to the seller pursuant to the terms of a contract constitute sales to the United States Government. Thus, sales by a subcontractor to the prime contractor, the party to the contract with the United States Government, do not constitute sales to the United States Government.

Example (i). A taxpayer contracts with General Services Administration to deliver X number of trucks which were paid for by the United States Government. The sale is a sale to the United States Government.

Example (ii). The taxpayer, as a subcontractor to a prime contractor with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, contracts to build a component of a rocket for $1,000,000. The sale by the subcontractor to the prime contractor is not a sale to the United States Government.

Section 5. Sales Other Than Sales of Tangible Personal Property: General Rules. In general, KRS 141.120(11) provides for the inclusion in the numerator of the receipts factor of gross receipts arising from transactions other than sales of tangible personal property.

(1) Market-based sourcing. Receipts, other than receipts described in KRS 141.120(10) (from sales of tangible personal property) are in this state within the meaning of KRS 141.120(11) if and to the extent that the taxpayer's market for the sales is in this state. In general, the provisions in this section establish uniform rules for:

(a) Determining whether and to what extent the market for a sale other than the sale of tangible personal property is in this state;

(b) Reasonably approximating the state or states of assignment where the state or states cannot be determined;

(c) Excluding receipts from the sale of intangible property from the numerator and denominator of the receipts factor pursuant to KRS 141.120(11)(a)(4)(b)iii; excluding receipts from the denominator of the receipts factor, pursuant to KRS 141.120(11)(c) where the state or states of assignment cannot be determined or reasonably approximated; or excluding receipts from the denominator of the receipts factor, pursuant to KRS 141.120(11)(c) where the taxpayer is not taxable in the state to which the receipts are assigned as determined under KRS 141.120(3).

(2) General principles of application: Contemporaneous Records. In order to satisfy the requirements of this administrative regulation, a taxpayer's assignment of receipts from sales of other than tangible personal property must be consistent with the following principles:

(a)1. A taxpayer shall apply the rules set forth in this administrative regulation based on objective criteria and shall consider all sources of information reasonably available to the taxpayer at the time of its tax filing including, without limitation, the taxpayer's books and records kept in the normal course of business;

2. A taxpayer shall determine its method of assigning receipts in good faith, and apply it consistently with respect to similar transactions and year to year; and

3. A taxpayer shall retain contemporaneous records that explain the determination and application of its method of assigning its receipts, including its underlying assumptions, and shall provide those records to the department upon request.

(b) This administrative regulation provides various assignment rules that apply sequentially in a hierarchy. For each sale to which a hierarchical rule applies, a taxpayer must make a reasonable effort to apply the primary rule applicable to the sale before seeking to apply the next rule in the hierarchy (and must continue to do so with each succeeding rule in the hierarchy, where applicable). For example, in some cases, the applicable rule first requires a taxpayer to determine the state or states of assignment, and if the taxpayer cannot do so, the rule requires the taxpayer to reasonably approximate the state or states. In these cases, the taxpayer must attempt to determine the state or states of assignment (i.e., apply the primary rule in the hierarchy) in good faith and with reasonable effort before it may reasonably approximate the state or states.

(c) A taxpayer's method of assigning its receipts, including the use of a method of approximation, where applicable, must reflect an attempt to obtain the most accurate assignment of receipts consistent with this administrative regulation, rather than an attempt to lower the taxpayer's tax liability. A method of assignment that is reasonable for one (1) taxpayer may not necessarily be reasonable for another taxpayer, depending upon the applicable facts.

(3) Rules of reasonable approximation.

(a) In general, this administrative regulation establishes uniform rules for determining whether and to what extent the market for a sale other than the sale of tangible personal property is in this state. The administrative regulation also sets forth rules of reasonable approximation, which apply if the state or states of assignment cannot be determined. In some instances, the reasonable approximation must be made in accordance with specific rules of approximation prescribed in this administrative regulation. In other cases, the applicable rule in this administrative regulation permits a taxpayer to reasonably approximate the state or states of assignment, using a method that reflects an effort to approximate the results that would be obtained under the applicable rules or standards set forth in this administrative regulation.

(b) Approximation Based Upon Known Sales. In an instance where, applying the applicable rules set forth in subsections (7), (8), (9), and (10) of this section, a taxpayer can ascertain the state or states of assignment of a substantial portion of its receipts from sales of substantially similar services ("assigned receipts"), but not all of those sales, and the taxpayer reasonably believes, based on all available information, that the geographic distribution of some or all of the remainder of those sales generally tracks that of the assigned receipts, it shall include receipts from those sales which it believes tracks the geographic distribution of the assigned receipts in its receipts factor in the same proportion as its assigned receipts. This rule also applies in the context of licenses and sales of intangible property where the substance of the transaction resembles a sale of goods or services.

(c) Related-member transactions - Information Imputed from Customer to Taxpayer. Where a taxpayer has receipts subject to this administrative regulation from transactions with a related-member customer, information that the customer has that is relevant to the sourcing of receipts from these transactions is imputed to the taxpayer.

(4) Rules with respect to exclusion of receipts from the receipts factor.

(a) The receipts factor only includes those amounts defined as receipts under KRS 141.120(1)(e).

(b) Certain receipts arising from the sale of intangibles are excluded from the numerator and denominator of the sales factor pursuant to KRS 141.120(11)(a)(4)(b)iii.

(c) In a case in which a taxpayer cannot ascertain the state or states to which receipts of a sale are to be assigned pursuant to the applicable rules set forth in this administrative regulation (including through the use of a method of reasonable approximation, where relevant) using a reasonable amount of effort undertaken in good faith, the receipts must be excluded from the denominator of the taxpayer's receipts factor pursuant to KRS 141.120(11)(c).

(d) In a case in which a taxpayer can ascertain the state or states to which receipts from a sale are to be assigned pursuant to the applicable rules set forth in this administrative regulation, but the taxpayer is not taxable in one (1) or more of those states, the receipts that would otherwise be assigned to those states where the taxpayer is not taxable must be excluded from the denominator of the taxpayer's receipts factor pursuant to KRS 141.120(11)(c).

(e) Receipts of a taxpayer from hedging transactions, or from the maturity, redemption, sale, exchange, loan, or other disposition of cash or securities, shall be excluded pursuant to KRS 141.120(1)(e).

(f) Nothing in the provisions adopted here pursuant to KRS 141.120 is intended to limit the application of KRS 141.120(12) or the authority granted to the department under KRS 141.120(12).

(5) Sale, rental, lease or license of real property. In the case of a sale, rental, lease, or license of real property, the receipts from the sale are in this state if and to the extent that the property is in this state.

(6) Rental, lease, or license of tangible personal property. In the case of a rental, lease, or license of tangible personal property, the receipts from the sale are in this state if and to the extent that the property is in this state. If property is mobile property that is located both within and without this state during the period of the lease or other contract, the receipts assigned to this state are the receipts from the contract period multiplied by the fraction computed under 103 KAR 16:290. (as adjusted when necessary to reflect differences between usage during the contract period and usage during the taxable year).

(7) Sale of a service.

(a) General rule. The receipts from a sale of a service are in this state if and to the extent that the service is delivered to a location in this state. In general, the term "delivered to a location" refers to the location of the taxpayer's market for the service, which may not be the location of the taxpayer's employees or property. The rules to determine the location of the delivery of a service in the context of several specific types of service transactions are set forth in subsections (7), (8), (9), and (10) of this section.

(b) In-person services.

1. In general, except as otherwise provided in this paragraph, in-person services are services that are physically provided in person by the taxpayer, where the customer or the customer's real or tangible property upon which the services are performed is in the same location as the service provider at the time the services are performed. This rule includes situations where the services are provided on behalf of the taxpayer by a third-party contractor. Examples of in-person services may include:

- a. Warranty and repair services;
- b. Cleaning services;
- c. Plumbing services;
- d. Carpentry;
- e. Construction contractor services;
- f. Pest control;
- g. Landscape services;
- h. Medical and dental services,
- i. Including medical testing,
- j. X-rays and mental health care and treatment;
- k. Child care;
- l. Hair cutting and salon services;
- m. Live entertainment and athletic performances; and
- n. In-person training or lessons.

In-person services include services described in 1.a.-n. above that are performed:

- a. At a location that is owned or operated by the service provider; or
  - b. A location of the customer, including the location of the customer's real or tangible personal property.
- Various professional services, including, but not limited to, accounting, financial and consulting services, and other similar services are not treated as in-person services within the meaning of this subparagraph, although they may involve some amount of in-person contact.

2. Assignment of receipts.

a. Rule of determination. Except as otherwise provided in this subparagraph, if the service provided by the taxpayer is an in-person service, the service is delivered to the location where the service is received. Therefore, the receipts from a sale are in this state if and to the extent the customer receives the in-person service in this state. In assigning its receipts from sales of in-person services, a taxpayer must first attempt to determine the location where a service is received, as follows:

a. If the service is performed with respect to the body of an individual customer in this state (e.g., hair cutting or x-ray services) or in the physical presence of the customer in this state (e.g., live entertainment or athletic performances), the service is received in this state.

b. If the service is performed with respect to the customer's real estate in this state or if the service is performed with respect to the customer's tangible personal property at the customer's residence or in the customer's possession in this state, the service is received in this state.

c. If the service is performed with respect to the customer's tangible personal property and the tangible personal property is to be shipped or delivered to the customer, whether the service is performed within or outside this state, the service is received in this state if the property is shipped or delivered to the customer in this state.

3. Rule of reasonable approximation. In an instance in which the state or states where a service is actually received cannot be determined, but the taxpayer has sufficient information regarding the place of receipt from which it can reasonably approximate the state or states where the service is received, the taxpayer shall reasonably approximate such state or states. If the state to which the receipts are to be assigned can be determined or reasonably approximated, but the taxpayer is not taxable in that state, the receipts that would otherwise be assigned to the state are excluded from the denominator of the taxpayer's receipts factor pursuant to KRS 141.120(11)(c).

4. Examples. In these examples assume, unless otherwise stated, that the taxpayer is taxable in each state to which its receipts would be assigned, so that there is no requirement that the receipts from the sale or sales be eliminated from the denominator of the taxpayer's receipts factor. Note that for purposes of the examples, it is irrelevant whether the services are performed by an employee of the taxpayer or by an independent contractor acting on the taxpayer's behalf.

Example (i). Salon Corp has retail locations in Kentucky and in other states where it provides hair cutting services to individual and business customers, the latter of whom are paid for through the means of a company account. The receipts from sales of services provided at Salon Corp's in-state locations are in Kentucky. The receipts from sales of services provided at Salon Corp's locations outside Kentucky, even when provided to residents of Kentucky, are not receipts from in-state sales.

Example (ii). Landscape Corp provides landscaping and gardening services in Kentucky and in neighboring states. Landscape Corp provides landscaping services at the in-state vacation home of an individual who is a resident of another state and who is located outside Kentucky at the time the services are performed. The receipts from sale of services provided at the in-state location are in Kentucky.

Example (iii). Same facts as in Example (ii), except that Landscape Corp provides the landscaping services to Retail Corp, a corporation with retail locations in several states, and the services are with respect to those locations of Retail Corp that are in Kentucky and in other states. The receipts from the sale of services provided to Retail Corp are in Kentucky to the extent the services are provided in Kentucky.

Example (iv). Camera Corp provides camera repair services at a Kentucky retail location to walk-in individual and business customers. In some cases, Camera Corp actually repairs a camera that is brought to its in-state location at a facility that is in another state. In these cases, the repaired camera is then returned to the customer at Camera Corp's Kentucky location. The receipts from sale of these services are in Kentucky.

Example (v). Same facts as in Example (iv), except that a customer located in Kentucky mails the camera directly to the out-of-state facility owned by Camera Corp to be fixed, and receives the repaired camera back in Kentucky by mail. The receipts from sale of the service are in Kentucky.

Example (vi). Teaching Corp provides seminars in Kentucky to individual and business customers. The seminars and the materials used in connection with the seminars are prepared outside the state, the teachers who teach the seminars include teachers that are resident outside the state, and the students who attend the seminars include students that are resident outside the state. Because the seminars are taught in Kentucky the receipts from sales of the services are in Kentucky.

(8) Services delivered to the customer, or on behalf of the customer, or delivered electronically through the customer.

(a) In general, if the service provided by the taxpayer is not an in-person service within the meaning of subsection (7)(b) of this section, or a professional service within the meaning of subsection (10) of this section, and the service is delivered to or on behalf of the customer, or delivered electronically through the customer, the receipts from a sale are in this state if and to the extent that the service is delivered in this state. For purposes of subsections (8) and (9) of this section, a service that is delivered "to" a customer is a service in which the customer and not a third party is the recipient of the service. A service that is delivered "on behalf of" a customer is one in which a customer contracts for a service but one (1) or more third parties, rather than the customer, is the recipient of the service, such as fulfillment services, or the direct or indirect delivery of advertising to the customer's intended audience. A service can be delivered to or on behalf of a customer by physical means or through electronic transmission. A service that is delivered electronically "through" a customer is a service that is delivered electronically to a customer for purposes of resale and subsequent electronic delivery in substantially identical form to an end user or other third-party recipient.

(b) Assignment of receipts. The assignment of receipts to a state or states in the instance of a sale of a service that is delivered to the customer or on behalf of the customer, or delivered electronically through the customer, depends upon the method of delivery of the service and the nature of the customer. Separate rules of assignment apply to services delivered by physical means and services delivered by electronic transmission. (For purposes of this subsection, a service delivered by an electronic transmission is not a delivery by a physical means). If a rule of assignment set forth in this administrative regulation, depends on whether the customer is an individual or a business customer, and the taxpayer acting in good faith cannot reasonably determine whether the customer is an individual or business customer, the taxpayer shall treat the customer as a business customer. If the state to which the receipts from a sale are to be assigned can be determined or reasonably approximated, but the taxpayer is not taxable in that state, the receipts that would otherwise be assigned to that state are excluded from the denominator of the taxpayer's receipts factor.

1. Delivery to or on behalf of a customer by physical means whether to an individual or business customer. Services delivered to a customer or on behalf of a customer through a physical means include, for example:

a. Product delivery services where property is delivered to the customer or to a third party on behalf of the customer;

b. The delivery of brochures, fliers or other direct mail services;

c. The delivery of advertising or advertising-related services to the customer's intended audience in the form of a physical medium; and

d. The sale of custom software where the taxpayer installs the custom software at the customer's site (e.g., where software is developed for a specific customer in a case where the transaction is properly treated as a service transaction for purposes of corporate taxation.) The rules in this administrative regulation apply whether the taxpayer's customer is an individual customer or a business customer.

e. Rule of determination. In assigning the receipts from a sale of a service delivered to a customer or on behalf of a customer through a physical means, a taxpayer must first attempt to determine the state or states where the service is delivered. If the taxpayer is able to determine the state or states where the service is delivered, it shall assign the receipts to that state or states.

f. Rule of reasonable approximation. If the taxpayer cannot determine the state or states where the service is actually delivered, but has sufficient information regarding the place of delivery from which it can reasonably approximate the state or states where the service is delivered, it shall reasonably approximate the state or states.

g. Examples. In these examples assume, unless otherwise stated, that the taxpayer is taxable in each state to which its receipts would be assigned, so that there is no requirement in these examples that the receipts must be eliminated from the denominator of the taxpayer's receipts factor.

Example (i). Direct Mail Corp, a corporation based outside Kentucky, provides direct mail services to its customer, Business Corp. Business Corp contracts with Direct Mail Corp to deliver printed fliers to a list of customers that is provided to it by Business Corp. Some of Business Corp's customers are in Kentucky and some of those customers are in other states. Direct Mail Corp will use the postal service to deliver the printed fliers to Business Corp's customers. The receipts from the sale of Direct Mail Corp's services to Business Corp are assigned to Kentucky to the extent that the services are delivered on behalf of Business Corp to Kentucky customers (i.e., to the extent that the fliers are delivered on behalf of Business Corp to Business Corp's intended audience in Kentucky).

Example (ii). Ad Corp is a corporation based outside Kentucky that provides advertising and advertising-related services in Kentucky and in neighboring states. Ad Corp enters into a contract at a location outside Kentucky with an individual customer who is not a Kentucky resident to design advertisements for billboards to be displayed in Kentucky, and to design fliers to be mailed to Kentucky residents. All of the design work is performed outside Kentucky. The receipts from the sale of the design services are in Kentucky because the service is physically delivered on behalf of the customer to the customer's intended audience in Kentucky.

Example (iii). Same facts as Example (ii), except that the contract is with a business customer that is based outside Kentucky. The receipts from the sale of the design services are in Kentucky because the services are physically delivered on behalf of the customer to the customer's intended audience in Kentucky.

Example (iv). Fulfillment Corp, a corporation based outside Kentucky, provides product delivery fulfillment services in Kentucky and in neighboring states to Sales Corp, a corporation located outside Kentucky that sells tangible personal property through a mail order catalog and over the Internet to customers. In some cases when a customer purchases tangible personal property from Sales Corp to be delivered in Kentucky, Fulfillment Corp will, pursuant to its contract with Sales Corp, deliver that property from its fulfillment warehouse located outside Kentucky. The receipts from the sale of the fulfillment services of Fulfillment Corp to Sales Corp are assigned to Kentucky to the extent that Fulfillment Corp's deliveries on behalf of Sales Corp are to recipients in Kentucky.

Example (v). Software Corp, a software development corporation, enters into a contract with a business customer, Buyer Corp, which is physically located in Kentucky, to develop custom software to be used in Buyer Corp's business. Software Corp develops the custom software outside Kentucky, and then physically installs the software on Buyer Corp's computer hardware located in Kentucky. The development and sale of the custom software is properly characterized as a service transaction, and the receipts from the sale are assigned to Kentucky because the software is physically delivered to the customer in Kentucky.

Example (vi). Same facts as Example (v), except that Buyer Corp has offices in Kentucky and several other states, but is commercially domiciled outside Kentucky and orders the software from a location outside Kentucky. The receipts from the development and sale of the custom software service are assigned to Kentucky because the software is physically delivered to the customer in Kentucky.

(9) Delivery to a customer by electronic transmission. Services delivered by electronic transmission include, without limitation, services that are transmitted through the means of wire, lines, cable, fiber optics, electronic signals, satellite transmission, audio or radio waves, or other similar means, whether or not the service provider owns, leases or otherwise controls the transmission equipment. In the case of the delivery of a service by electronic transmission to a customer, the following rules apply:

(a) Services delivered by electronic transmission to an Individual Customer.

1.a. Rule of determination. In the case of the delivery of a service to an individual customer by electronic transmission, the service is delivered in this state if and to the extent that the taxpayer's customer receives the service in this state. If the taxpayer can determine the state or states where the service is received, it shall assign the receipts from that sale to that state or states.

b. Rules of reasonable approximation. If the taxpayer cannot determine the state or states where the customer actually receives the service, but has sufficient information regarding the place of receipt from which it can reasonably approximate the state or states where the service is received, it shall reasonably approximate the state or states. If a taxpayer does not have sufficient information from which it can determine or reasonably approximate the state or states in which the service is received, it shall reasonably approximate the state or states using the customer's billing address.

2. Services delivered by electronic transmission to a business customer.

a. Rule of determination. In the case of the delivery of a service to a business customer by electronic transmission, the service is delivered in this state if and to the extent that the taxpayer's customer receives the service in this state. If the taxpayer can determine the state or states where the service is received, it shall assign the receipts from that sale to the state or states. For purposes of this subsection 9(b)(2) of this section it is intended that the state or states where the service is received reflect the location at which the service is directly used by the employees or designees of the customer.

b. Rule of reasonable approximation. If the taxpayer cannot determine the state or states where the customer actually receives the service, but has sufficient information regarding the place of receipt from which it can reasonably approximate the state or states where the service is received, it shall reasonably approximate the state or states.

c. Secondary rule of reasonable approximation. In the case of the delivery of a service to a business customer by electronic transmission where a taxpayer does not have sufficient information from which it can determine or reasonably approximate the state or states in which the service is received, the taxpayer shall reasonably approximate the state or states as set forth in this administrative regulation. In these cases, unless the taxpayer can apply the safe harbor set forth in this subsection the taxpayer shall reasonably approximate the state or states in which the service is received as follows:

i. By assigning the receipts from the sale to the state where the contract of sale is principally managed by the customer;

ii. If the state where the customer principally manages the contract is not reasonably determinable, by assigning the receipts from the sale to the customer's place of order; and

iii. If the customer's place of order is not reasonably determinable, by assigning the receipts from the sale using the customer's billing address; provided, however, if the taxpayer derives more than five (5) percent of its receipts from sales of services from any single customer, the taxpayer is required to identify the state in which the contract of sale is principally managed by that customer.

d. Safe harbor. In the case of the delivery of a service to a business customer by electronic transmission a taxpayer may not be able to determine, or reasonably approximate the state or states in which the service is received. In these cases, the taxpayer may, in lieu of the rule stated at subsection (9)(b)2.c. of this section, apply the safe harbor stated in this subsection. Under this safe harbor, a taxpayer may assign its receipts from sales to a particular customer based upon the customer's billing address in a taxable year in which the taxpayer (1) engages in substantially similar service transactions with more than 250 customers, whether business or individual, and (2) does not derive more than five (5) percent of its receipts from sales of all services from that customer. This safe harbor applies only for purposes of services delivered by electronic transmission to a business customer, and not otherwise.

e. Related member transactions. In the case of a sale of a service by electronic transmission to a business customer that is a related member, the taxpayer may not use the secondary rule of reasonable approximation in subparagraph iii of this section but may use the rule of reasonable approximation and the safe harbor provided that the department may aggregate sales to related members in determining whether the sales exceed five (5) percent of receipts from sales of all services under that safe harbor provision if necessary or appropriate to prevent distortion.

f. Examples. In these examples, unless otherwise stated, assume that the taxpayer is not related to the customer to which the service is delivered. Also, unless otherwise stated, assume that the taxpayer is taxable in each state to which its receipts would be assigned, so that there is no requirement in these examples that the receipts must be eliminated from the denominator of the taxpayer's receipts factor. Further, assume if relevant, unless otherwise stated, that the safe harbor set forth in subparagraph d. above does not apply.

Example (i). Support Corp, a corporation that is based outside Kentucky, provides software support and diagnostic services to individual and business customers that have previously purchased certain software from third-party vendors. These individual and business customers are located in Kentucky and other states. Support Corp supplies its services on a case-by-case basis when directly contacted by its customer. Support Corp generally provides these services through the Internet but sometimes provides these services by phone. In all cases, Support Corp verifies the customer's account information before providing any service. Using the information that Support Corp verifies before performing a service, Support Corp can determine where its services are received, and therefore must assign its receipts to these locations. The receipts from sales made to Support Corp's individual and business customers are in Kentucky to the extent that Support Corp's services are received in Kentucky.

Example (ii). Online Corp, a corporation based outside Kentucky, provides Web-based services through the means of the Internet to individual customers who are residents in Kentucky and in other states. These customers access Online Corp's Web services primarily in their states of residence, and sometimes, while traveling, in other states. For a substantial portion of its receipts from the sale of services, Online Corp can either determine the state or states where the services are received, or, where it cannot determine the state or states, it has sufficient information regarding the place of receipt to reasonably approximate the state or states. However, Online Corp cannot determine or reasonably approximate the state or states of receipt for all of the sales of its services. Assuming that Online Corp reasonably believes, based on all available information, that the geographic distribution of the receipts from sales for which it cannot determine or reasonably approximate the location of the receipt of its services generally tracks those for which it does have this information, Online Corp must assign to Kentucky the receipts from sales for which it does not know the customers' locations in the same proportion as those receipts for which it has this information.

Example (iii). Same facts as in Example (ii), except that Online Corp reasonably believes that the geographic distribution of the receipts from sales for which it cannot determine or reasonably approximate the location of the receipt of its Web-based services do not generally track the sales for which it does have this information. Online Corp must assign the receipts from sales of its services for which it lacks information as provided to its individual customers using the customers' billing addresses.

Example (iv). Same facts as in Example (iii), except that Online Corp is not taxable in one (1) state to which some of its receipts from sales would be otherwise assigned. The receipts that would be otherwise assigned to that state are excluded from the denominator of Online Corp's receipts factor.

Example (v). Net Corp, a corporation based outside Kentucky, provides web-based services to a business customer, Business Corp, a company with offices in Kentucky and two (2) neighboring states. Particular employees of Business Corp access the services from computers in each Business Corp office. Assume that Net Corp determines that Business Corp employees in Kentucky were responsible for seventy-five (75) percent of Business Corp's use of Net Corp's services, and Business Corp employees in other states were responsible for twenty-five (25) percent of Business Corp's use of Net Corp's services. In this case, seventy-five (75) percent of the receipts from the sale are received in Kentucky. Assume alternatively that Net Corp lacks sufficient information regarding the location or locations where Business Corp's employees used the services to determine or reasonably approximate the location or locations. Under these circumstances, if Net Corp derives five (5) percent or less of its receipts from sales to Business Corp, Net Corp must assign the receipts under the secondary rule of approximation to the state where Business Corp principally managed the contract, or if that state is not reasonably determinable, to the state where Business Corp placed the order for the services, or if that state is not reasonably determinable, to the state of Business Corp's billing address. If Net Corp derives more than five (5) percent of its receipts from sales of services to Business Corp, Net Corp is required to identify the state in which its contract of sale is principally managed by Business Corp and must assign the receipts to that state.

Example (vi). Net Corp, a corporation based outside Kentucky, provides Web-based services through the means of the Internet to more than 250 individual and business customers in Kentucky and in other states. Assume that for each customer Net Corp cannot determine the state or states where its Web services are actually received, and lacks sufficient information regarding the place of receipt to reasonably approximate the state or states. Also assume that Net Corp does not derive more than five (5) percent of its receipts from sales of services to a single customer. Net Corp may apply the safe harbor, and may assign its receipts using each customer's billing address. If Net Corp is not taxable in one (1) or more states to which some of its receipts would be otherwise assigned, it must exclude those receipts from the denominator of its receipts factor.

(b) Services delivered electronically through or "on behalf of" an individual or business customer. A service delivered electronically "on behalf of" the customer is one in which a customer contracts for a service to be delivered electronically but one (1) or more third parties, rather than the customer, is the recipient of the service, such as the direct or indirect delivery of advertising on behalf of a customer to the customer's intended audience. A service delivered electronically "through" a customer to third-party recipients is a service that is delivered electronically to a customer for purposes of resale and subsequent electronic delivery in substantially identical form to end users or other third-party recipients.

1. Rule of determination. In the case of the delivery of a service by electronic transmission, where the service is delivered electronically to end users or other third-party recipients through or on behalf of the customer, the service is delivered in this state if and to the extent that the end users or other third-party recipients are in this state. For example, in the case of the direct or indirect delivery of advertising on behalf of a customer to the customer's intended audience by electronic means, the service is delivered in this state to the extent that the audience for the advertising is in this state. In the case of the delivery of a service to a customer that acts as an intermediary in reselling the service in substantially identical form to third-party recipients, the service is delivered in this state to the extent that the end users or other third-party recipients receive the services in this state. These rules [in this subsection] apply whether the taxpayer's customer is an individual customer or a business customer and whether the end users or other third-party recipients to which the services are delivered through or on behalf of the customer are individuals or businesses.

2. Rule of reasonable approximation. If the taxpayer cannot determine the state or states where the services are actually delivered to the end users or other third-party recipients either through or on behalf of the customer, but has sufficient information regarding the place of delivery from which it can reasonably approximate the state or states where the services are delivered, it shall reasonably approximate the state or states.

3. Select secondary rules of reasonable approximation.

a. If a taxpayer's service is the direct or indirect electronic delivery of advertising on behalf of its customer to the customer's intended audience, and if the taxpayer lacks sufficient information regarding the location of the audience from which it can determine or reasonably approximate that location, the taxpayer shall reasonably approximate the audience in a state for the advertising using the following secondary rules of reasonable approximation. If a taxpayer is delivering advertising directly or indirectly to a known list of subscribers, the taxpayer shall reasonably approximate the audience for advertising in a state using a percentage that reflects the ratio of the state's subscribers in the specific geographic area in which the advertising is delivered relative to the total subscribers in that area. For a taxpayer with less information about its audience, the taxpayer shall reasonably approximate the audience in a state using the percentage that reflects the ratio of the state's population in the specific geographic area in which the advertising is delivered relative to the total population in that area.

b. If a taxpayer's service is the delivery of a service to a customer that then acts as the taxpayer's intermediary in reselling that service to end users or other third party recipients; or if the taxpayer lacks sufficient information regarding the location of the end users or other third party recipients from which it can determine or reasonably approximate that location; the taxpayer shall reasonably approximate the extent to which the service is received in a state by using the percentage that reflects the ratio of the state's population in the specific geographic area in which the taxpayer's intermediary resells the services, relative to the total population in that area.

c. Examples. Assume in each of these examples that the taxpayer that provides the service is taxable in this state and must apportion its income pursuant to KRS 141.120.

Example: Web Corp, a corporation that is based outside Kentucky, provides Internet content to viewers in Kentucky and other states. Web Corp sells advertising space to business customers pursuant to which the customers' advertisements will appear in connection with Web Corp's Internet content. Web Corp receives a fee for running the advertisements that is determined by reference to the number of times the advertisement is viewed or clicked upon by the viewers of its Website. Web Corp's sale of advertising space to its business customers is assigned to Kentucky to the extent that the viewers of the Internet content are in Kentucky, as measured by viewings or clicks. If Web Corp is unable to determine the actual location of its viewers, and lacks sufficient information regarding the location of its viewers to reasonably approximate such location, Web Corp must approximate the amount of its Kentucky sales by multiplying the amount of such sales by a percentage that reflects the Kentucky population in the specific geographic area in which the content containing the advertising is delivered relative to the total population in such area.

Example (ii). Retail Corp, a corporation that is based outside of Kentucky, sells tangible property through its retail stores located in Kentucky and other states, and through a mail order catalog. Answer Co, a corporation that operates call centers in multiple states, contracts with Retail Corp to answer telephone calls from individuals placing orders for products found in Retail Corp's catalogs. In this case, the phone answering services of Answer Co are being delivered to Retail Corp's customers and prospective customers. Therefore, Answer Co is delivering a service electronically to Retail Corp's customers or prospective customers on behalf of Retail Corp, and must assign the proceeds from this service to the state or states from which the phone calls are placed by such customers or prospective customers. If Answer Co cannot determine the actual locations from which phone calls are placed, and lacks sufficient information regarding the locations to reasonably approximate such locations, Answer Co must approximate the amount of its Kentucky sales by multiplying the amount of its fee from Retail Corp by a percentage that reflects the Kentucky population in the specific geographic area from which the calls are placed relative to the total population in such area.

Example (iii). Web Corp, a corporation that is based outside of Kentucky, sells tangible property to customers via its Internet Website. Design Co designed and maintains Web Corp's website, including making changes to the site based on customer feedback received through the site. Design Co's services are delivered to Web Corp, the proceeds from which are assigned pursuant to Section 5(9) of this administrative regulation. The fact that Web Corp's customers and prospective customers incidentally benefit from Design Co's services, and may even interact with Design Co in the course of providing feedback, does not transform the service into one delivered "on behalf of" Web Corp to Web Corp's customers and prospective customers.

Example (iv). Wholesale Corp, a corporation that is based outside Kentucky, develops an Internet-based information database outside Kentucky and enters into a contract with Retail Corp whereby Retail Corp will market and sell access to this database to end users. Depending on the facts, the provision of database access may be either the sale of a service or the license of intangible property or may have elements of both. Assume that on the particular facts applicable in this example, Wholesale Corp is selling database access in transactions properly characterized as involving the performance of a service. When an end user purchases access to Wholesale Corp's database from Retail Corp, Retail Corp in turn compensates Wholesale Corp in connection with that transaction. In this case, Wholesale Corp's services are being delivered through Retail Corp to the end user. Wholesale Corp must assign its sales to Retail Corp to the state or states in which the end users receive access to Wholesale Corp's database. If Wholesale Corp cannot determine the state or states where the end users actually receive access to Wholesale Corp's database, and lacks sufficient information regarding the location from which the end users access the database to reasonably approximate such location, Wholesale Corp must approximate the extent to which its services are received by end users in Kentucky by using a percentage that reflects the ratio of the Kentucky population in the specific geographic area in which Retail Corp regularly markets and sells Wholesale Corp's database relative to the total population in such area. Note that it does not matter for purposes of the analysis whether Wholesale Corp's sale of database access constitutes a service or a license of intangible property, or some combination of both.

(10) Professional services.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, professional services are services that require specialized knowledge, and in some cases, require a professional certification, license, or degree. These services include the performance of technical services that require the application of specialized knowledge. Professional services include, without limitation:

1. Management services;
2. Bank and financial services;
3. Financial custodial services;
4. Investment and brokerage services;
5. Fiduciary services;
6. Tax preparation;
7. Payroll and accounting services;
8. Lending services;
9. Credit card services (including credit card processing services);

10. Data processing services;
11. Legal services;
12. Consulting services;
13. Video production services;
14. Graphic and other design services;
15. Engineering services; and
16. Architectural services.

(b) Overlap with other categories of services.

1. Certain services that fall within the definition of "professional services" set forth in this subsection are nevertheless treated as "in-person services", and are assigned under the rules of that subsection (7)(b) of this section. Specifically, professional services that are physically provided in person by the taxpayer such as carpentry, certain medical and dental services or child care services, where the customer or the customer's real or tangible property upon which the services are provided is in the same location as the service provider at the time the services are performed, are "in-person services" and are assigned as such, notwithstanding that they may also be considered to be "professional services." However, professional services where the service is of an intellectual or intangible nature, such as legal, accounting, financial and consulting services, are assigned as professional services under the rules of this subsection, notwithstanding the fact that these services may involve some amount of in-person contact.

2. Professional services may in some cases include the transmission of one (1) or more documents or other communications by mail or by electronic means. In some cases, all or most communications between the service provider and the service recipient may be by mail or by electronic means. However, in these cases, despite this transmission, the assignment rules that apply are those set forth in this subsection and not those set forth in subsection (8) of this section pertaining to services delivered to a customer or through or on behalf of a customer.

(c) Assignment of receipts. In the case of a professional service, it is generally possible to characterize the location of delivery in multiple ways by emphasizing different elements of the service provided, no one (1) of which will consistently represent the market for the services. Therefore, the location of delivery in the case of professional services is not susceptible to a general rule of determination, and must be reasonably approximated. The assignment of receipts from a sale of a professional service depends in many cases upon whether the customer is an individual or business customer. In any instance in which the taxpayer, acting in good faith, cannot reasonably determine whether the customer is an individual or business customer, the taxpayer shall treat the customer as a business customer. For purposes of assigning the receipts from a sale of a professional service, a taxpayer's customer is the person that contracts for the service, irrespective of whether another person pays for or also benefits from the taxpayer's services. In any instance in which the taxpayer is not taxable in the state to which receipts from a sale is assigned, the receipts are excluded from the denominator of the taxpayer's receipts factor.

1. General rule. Receipts from sales of professional services are assigned in accordance with Section 5 of this administrative regulation, other than those services described in:

- a. Subsection (10)(c)2. of this section. (architectural and engineering services);
- b. Subsection (10)(c)3. of this section. (services provided by a financial institution); and
- c. Subsection (10)(c)4. of this section. (transactions with related members)

d. Professional services delivered to individual customers. Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, in any instance in which the service provided is a professional service and the taxpayer's customer is an individual customer, the state or states in which the service is delivered must be reasonably approximated as set forth in this subsection. In particular, the taxpayer shall assign the receipts from a sale to the customer's state of primary residence, or, if the taxpayer cannot reasonably identify the customer's state of primary residence, to the state of the customer's billing address; provided, however, in any instance in which the taxpayer derives more than five (5) percent of its receipts from sales of all services from an individual customer, the taxpayer shall identify the customer's state of primary residence and assign the receipts from the service or services provided to that customer to that state.

e. Professional services delivered to business customers. Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, in any instance in which the service provided is a professional service and the taxpayer's customer is a business customer, the state or states in which the service is delivered must be reasonably approximated as set forth in this section. In particular, unless the taxpayer may use the safe harbor set forth in subsection (10)(f) of this section, the taxpayer shall assign the receipts from the sale as follows: first, by assigning the receipts to the state where the contract of sale is principally managed by the customer; second, if the place of customer management is not reasonably determinable, to the customer's place of order; and third, if the customer place of order is not reasonably determinable, to the customer's billing address; provided, however, in any instance in which the taxpayer derives more than five (5) percent of its receipts from sales of all services from a customer, the taxpayer is required to identify the state in which the contract of sale is principally managed by the customer.

f. Safe harbor: large volume of transactions. Notwithstanding the rules set forth in paragraphs (d) and (e) of this subsection, a taxpayer may assign its receipts from sales to a particular customer based on the customer's billing address in any taxable year in which the taxpayer engages in substantially similar service transactions with more than 250 customers, whether individual or business, and does not derive more than five (5) percent of its receipts from sales of all services from that customer. This safe harbor applies only for purposes of subsection (10)(d) of this section, and not otherwise.

2. Architectural and engineering services with respect to real or tangible personal property. Architectural and engineering services with respect to real or tangible personal property are professional services within the meaning of subsection (10) of this section. However, unlike in the case of the general rule that applies to professional services,

a. The receipts from a sale of an architectural service are assigned to a state or states if and to the extent that the services are with respect to real estate improvements located, or expected to be located, in the state or states; and

b. The receipts from a sale of an engineering service are assigned to a state or states if and to the extent that the services are with respect to tangible or real property located in the state or states, including real estate improvements located in, or expected to be located in, the state or states. These rules apply whether or not the customer is an individual or business customer. In any instance in which architectural or engineering services are not described in subsection (10)(d)2. of this section, the receipts from a sale of these services must be assigned under the general rule for professional services.

3. Services provided by financial organizations and institutions. The apportionment rules that apply to "financial organizations," as defined by KRS 141.120(1)(c), are set forth in KRS 141.121(5) and this administrative regulation. In any instance in which a financial institution performs services that are to be assigned pursuant to KRS 141.121(5) and this administrative regulation, including, for example, financial custodial services, those services are considered professional services within the meaning of subsection (10) of this section, and are assigned according to the general rule for professional service transactions as set forth in subsection (10)(c)1. of this section. Note that "financial institutions," as defined by KRS 136.500(10), are subject to the franchise tax imposed by KRS 136.505 and related statutes and administrative regulations under KRS Chapter 136 and are exempt from the corporation income tax per KRS 141.040(1)(a) and the limited liability entity tax per KRS 141.0401(6)(a).

4. Related member transactions. In any instance in which the professional service is sold to a related member, rather than applying the rule for professional services delivered to business customers in subsection (10)(e) of this section, the state or states to which the service is assigned is the place of receipt by the related member as reasonably approximated using the following hierarchy: (1) if the service primarily relates to specific operations or activities of a related member conducted in one (1) or more locations, then to the state or states in which those operations or activities are conducted in proportion to the related member's payroll at the locations to which the service relates in the state or states; or (2) if the service does not relate primarily to operations or activities of a related member conducted in particular locations, but instead relates to the operations of the related member generally, then to the state or states in which the related member has employees, in proportion to the related member's payroll in those states. The taxpayer may use the safe harbor provided by this administrative regulation provided that the department may aggregate the receipts from sales to related members in applying the five (5) percent rule if necessary or appropriate to avoid distortion.

5. Broadcast advertising services. Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary, receipts from a broadcaster's sale of advertising services to a broadcast customer are assigned to this state if the commercial domicile of the broadcast customer is in this state. For purposes of this provision, "advertising services" means an agreement to include the broadcast customer's advertising content in the broadcaster's film programming.

6. Examples. Unless otherwise stated, assume in each of these examples, where relevant, that the taxpayer is taxable in each state to which its receipts would be assigned, so that there is no requirement in the examples that the receipts must be excluded from the denominator of the taxpayer's receipts factor. Assume also that the customer is not a related member and that the safe harbor does not apply.

Example (i). Broker Corp provides securities brokerage services to individual customers who are resident in Kentucky and in other states. Assume that Broker Corp knows the state of primary residence for many of its customers, and where it does not know this state of primary residence, it knows the customer's billing address. Also, assume that Broker Corp does not derive more than five (5) percent of its receipts from sales of all services from any one (1) individual customer. If Broker Corp knows its customer's state of primary residence, it shall assign the receipts to that state. If Broker Corp does not know its customer's state of primary residence, but rather knows the customer's billing address, it shall assign the receipts to that state.

Example (ii). Same facts as in Example (i), except that Broker Corp has several individual customers from whom it derives, in each instance, more than five (5) percent of its receipts from sales of all services. Receipts from sales to customers from whom Broker Corp derives five (5) percent or less of its receipts from sales of all services must be assigned as described in Example (i). For each customer from whom it derives more than five (5) percent of its receipts from sales of all services, Broker Corp is required to determine the customer's state of primary residence and must assign the receipts from the services provided to that customer to that state. In any case in which a five (5) percent customer's state of primary residence is Kentucky, receipts from a sale made to that customer must be assigned to Kentucky; in any case in which a five (5) percent customer's state of primary residence is not Kentucky receipts from a sale made to that customer are not assigned to Kentucky. Where receipts from a sale are assigned to a state other than Kentucky, if the state of assignment (i.e., the state of primary residence of the individual customer) is a state in which Broker Corp is not taxable, receipts from the sales must be excluded from the denominator of Broker Corp's receipts factor.

Example (iii). Architecture Corp provides building design services as to buildings located, or expected to be located, in Kentucky to individual customers who are resident in Kentucky and other states, and to business customers that are based in Kentucky and other states. The receipts from Architecture Corp's sales are assigned to Kentucky because the locations of the buildings to which its design services relate are in Kentucky, or are expected to be in Kentucky. For purposes of assigning these receipts, it is not relevant where, in the case of an individual customer, the customer primarily resides or is billed for the services, and it is not relevant where, in the case of a business customer, the customer principally manages the contract, placed the order for the services, or is billed for the services. Further, these receipts are assigned to Kentucky even if Architecture Corp's designs are either physically delivered to its customer in paper form in a state other than Kentucky or are electronically delivered to its customer in a state other than Kentucky.

Example (iv). Law Corp provides legal services to individual clients who are residents in Kentucky and in other states. In some cases, Law Corp may prepare one (1) or more legal documents for its client as a result of these services and/or the legal work may be related to litigation or a legal matter that is ongoing in a state other than where the client is resident. Assume that Law Corp knows the state of primary residence for many of its clients, and where it does not know this state of primary residence, it knows the client's billing address. Also, assume that Law Corp does not derive more than five (5) percent of its receipts from sales of all services from any one (1) individual client. If Law Corp knows its client's state of primary residence, it shall assign the receipts to that state. If Law Corp does not know its client's state of primary residence, but rather knows the client's billing address, it shall assign the receipts to that state. For purposes of the analysis it is irrelevant whether the legal documents relating to the service are mailed or otherwise delivered to a location in another state, or the litigation or other legal matter that is the underlying predicate for the services is in another state.

Example (v). Same facts as in Example (iv), except that Law Corp provides legal services to several individual clients who it knows have a primary residence in a state where Law Corp is not taxable. Receipts from these services are excluded from the denominator of Law Corp's receipts factor even if the billing address of one (1) or more of these clients is in a state in which Law Corp is taxable, including Kentucky.

Example (vi). Law Corp provides legal services to several multistate business clients. In each case, Law Corp knows the state in which the agreement for legal services that governs the client relationship is principally managed by the client. In one (1) case, the agreement is principally managed in Kentucky; in the other cases, the agreement is principally managed in a state other than Kentucky. If the agreement for legal services is principally managed by the client in Kentucky the receipts from sale of the services are assigned to Kentucky; in the other cases, the receipts are not assigned to Kentucky. In the case of receipts that are assigned to Kentucky, the receipts are so assigned even if (1) the legal documents relating to the service are mailed or otherwise delivered to a location in another state, or (2) the litigation or other legal matter that is the underlying predicate for the services is in another state.

Example (vii). Same facts as in Example (vi), except that Law Corp is not taxable in one (1) of the states other than Kentucky in which Law Corp's agreement for legal services that governs the client relationship is principally managed by the business client. Receipts from these latter services are excluded from the denominator of Law Corp's receipts factor.

Example (viii). Consulting Corp, a company that provides consulting services to law firms and other customers, is hired by Law Corp in connection with legal representation that Law Corp provides to Client Co. Specifically, Consulting Corp is hired to provide expert testimony at a trial being conducted by Law Corp on behalf of Client Co. Client Co pays for Consulting Corp's services directly. Assuming that Consulting Corp knows that its agreement with Law Corp is principally managed by Law Corp in Kentucky, the receipts from the sale of Consulting Corp's services are assigned to Kentucky. It is not relevant for purposes of the analysis that Client Co is the ultimate beneficiary of Consulting Corp's services, or that Client Co pays for Consulting Corp's services directly.

Example (ix). Bank Corp provides financial custodial services, including the safekeeping of some of its customers' financial assets, to 100 individual customers who are resident in Kentucky and in other states. Assume for purposes of this example that Bank Corp knows the state of primary residence for many of its customers, and where it does not know the state of primary residence, it knows the customer's billing address. Also assume that Bank Corp does not derive more than five (5) percent of its receipts from sales of all of its services from any single customer. Note that because Bank Corp does not have more than 250 customers, it may not apply the safe harbor for professional services stated in Section 5(10) of this administrative regulation. If Bank Corp knows its customer's state of primary residence, it must assign the receipts to that state. If Bank Corp does not know its customer's state of primary residence, but rather knows the customer's billing address, it must assign the receipts to that state. Bank Corp's receipts are assigned to Kentucky if the customer's state of primary residence (or billing address, in cases where it does not know the customer's state of primary residence) is in Kentucky, even if Bank Corp's financial custodial work, including the safekeeping of the customer's financial assets, takes place in a state other than Kentucky.

Example (x). Same facts as Example (ix), except that Bank Corp has more than 250 customers, individual or business. Bank Corp may apply the safe harbor for professional services stated in Section 5(10)(f) of this administrative regulation, and may assign its receipts from sales to a state or states using each customer's billing address.

Example (xi). Same facts as Example (x), except that Bank Corp derives more than five (5) percent of its receipts from sales from a single individual customer. As to the sales made to this customer, Bank Corp is required to determine the individual customer's state of primary residence and must assign the receipts from the service or services provided to that customer to that state. Receipts from sales to all other customers are assigned as described in Example (x).

Example (xii). Advisor Corp, a corporation that provides investment advisory services, provides these advisory services to Investment Co. Investment Co is a multistate business client of Advisor Corp that uses Advisor Corp's services in connection with investment accounts that it manages for individual clients, who are the ultimate beneficiaries of Advisor Corp's services. Assume that Investment Co's individual clients are persons that are residents in numerous states, which may or may not include Kentucky. Assuming that Advisor Corp knows that its agreement with Investment Co is principally managed by Investment Co in Kentucky, receipts from the sale of Advisor Corp's services are assigned to Kentucky. It is not relevant for purposes of the analysis that the ultimate beneficiaries of Advisor Corp's services may be Investment Co's clients, who are residents of numerous states.

Example (xiii). Advisor Corp provides investment advisory services to Investment Fund LP, a partnership that invests in securities and other assets. Assuming that Advisor Corp knows that its agreement with Investment Fund LP is principally managed by Investment Fund LP in Kentucky, receipts from the sale of Advisor Corp's services are assigned to Kentucky. Note that it is not relevant for purposes of the analysis that the partners in Investment Fund LP are residents of numerous states.

Example (xiv). Design Corp is a corporation based outside Kentucky that provides graphic design and similar services in Kentucky and in neighboring states. Design Corp enters into a contract at a location outside Kentucky with an individual customer to design fliers for the customer. Assume that Design Corp does not know the individual customer's state of primary residence and does not derive more than five (5) percent of its receipts from sales of services from the individual customer. All of the design work is performed outside Kentucky. Receipts from the sales are in Kentucky if the customer's billing address is in Kentucky.

(11) License or lease of intangible property.

(a)1. The receipts from the license of intangible property are in this state if and to the extent the intangible is used in this state. In general, the term "use" is construed to refer to the location of the taxpayer's market for the use of the intangible property that is being licensed and is not to be construed to refer to the location of the property or payroll of the taxpayer. The rules that apply to determine the location of the use of intangible property in the context of several specific types of licensing transactions are set forth in subsection (11)(b)-(f) of this section. For purposes of the rules set forth in this subsection, a lease of intangible property is to be treated the same as a license of intangible property.

2. In general, a license of intangible property that conveys all substantial rights in that property is treated as a sale of intangible property for purposes of this administrative regulation. Note, however, that for purposes of subsection (11) and (12) of this section, a sale or exchange of intangible property is treated as a license of that property where the receipts from the sale or exchange derived from payments that are contingent on the productivity, use or disposition of the property.

3. Intangible property licensed as part of the sale or lease of tangible property is treated under Section 5 of this administrative regulation as the sale or lease of tangible property.

4. In any instance in which the taxpayer is not taxable in the state to which the receipts from the license of intangible property are assigned, the receipts are excluded from the denominator of the taxpayer's receipts factor.

5. Nothing in this administrative regulation shall be construed to allow or require inclusion of receipts in the receipts factor that are not included in the definition of "receipts" pursuant to KRS 141.120(1)(e), or that are excluded from the numerator and the denominator of the receipts factor pursuant to KRS 141.120(11)(a)(4)(b)iii. So, to the extent that the transfer of either a security or business "goodwill" or similar intangible value, including, without limitation, "going concern value" or "workforce in place," may be characterized as a license or lease of intangible property, receipts from such transaction shall be excluded from the numerator and the denominator of the taxpayer's receipts factor.

(b) License of a marketing intangible. Where a license is granted for the right to use intangible property in connection with the sale, lease, license, or other marketing of goods, services, or other items (i.e., a marketing intangible) to a consumer, the royalties or other licensing fees paid by the licensee for that marketing intangible are assigned to this state to the extent that those fees are attributable to the sale or other provision of goods, services, or other items purchased or otherwise acquired by consumers or other ultimate customers in this state. Examples of a license of a marketing intangible include, without limitation, the license of a service mark, trademark, or trade name; certain copyrights; the license of a film, television or multimedia production or event for commercial distribution; and a franchise agreement. In each of these instances, the license of the marketing intangible is intended to promote consumer sales. In the case of the license of a marketing intangible, where a taxpayer has actual evidence of the amount or proportion of its receipts that is attributable to this state, it shall assign that amount or proportion to this state. In the absence of actual evidence of the amount or proportion of the licensee's receipts that are derived from consumers in this state, the portion of the licensing fee to be assigned to this state must be reasonably approximated by multiplying the total fee by a percentage that reflects the ratio of the population of this state in the specific geographic area in which the licensee makes material use of the intangible property to regularly market its goods, services or other items relative to the total population in that area. If the license of a marketing intangible is for the right to use the intangible property in connection with sales or other transfers at wholesale rather than directly to retail customers, the portion of the licensing fee to be assigned to this state must be reasonably approximated by multiplying the total fee by a percentage that reflects the ratio of the population of this state in the specific geographic area in which the licensee's goods, services, or other items are ultimately and materially marketed using the intangible property relative to the total population of that area. Unless the taxpayer demonstrates that the marketing intangible is materially used in the marketing of items outside the United States, the fees from licensing those marketing intangible will be presumed to be derived from within the United States.

(c) License of a production intangible. If a license is granted for the right to use intangible property other than in connection with the sale, lease, license, or other marketing of goods, services, or other items, and the license is to be used in a production capacity (a "production intangible"), the licensing fees paid by the licensee for that right are assigned to this state to the extent that the use for which the fees are paid takes place in this state. Examples of a license of a production intangible include, without limitation, the license of a patent, a copyright, or trade secrets to be used in a manufacturing process, where the value of the intangible lies predominately in its use in that process. In the case of a license of a production intangible to a member other than a related member where the location of actual use is unknown, it is presumed that the use of the intangible property takes place in the state of the licensee's commercial domicile (where the licensee is a business) or the licensee's state of primary residence (where the licensee is an individual). If the department can reasonably establish that the actual use of intangible property pursuant to a license of a production intangible takes place in part in this state, it is presumed that the entire use is in this state except to the extent that the taxpayer can demonstrate that the actual location of a portion of the use takes place outside this state. In the case of a license of a production intangible to a related member, the taxpayer must assign the receipts to where the intangible property is actually used.

(d) License of a broadcasting intangible. Where a broadcaster grants a license to a broadcast customer for the right to use film programming, the licensing fees paid by the licensee for such right are assigned to this state to the extent that the broadcast customer is located in this state. In the case of business customers, the broadcast customer's location shall be determined using the broadcast customer's commercial domicile. In the case of individual customers, the broadcast customer's location shall be determined using the address of the broadcast customer listed in the broadcaster's records.

(e) License of a mixed intangible. If a license of intangible property includes both a license of a marketing intangible and a license of a production intangible (a "mixed intangible") and the fees to be paid in each instance are separately and reasonably stated in the licensing contract, the department will accept that separate statement for purposes of this administrative regulation. If a license of intangible property includes both a license of a marketing intangible and a license of a production intangible and the fees to be paid in each instance are not separately and reasonably stated in the contract, it is presumed that the licensing fees are paid entirely for the license of the marketing intangible except to the extent that the taxpayer or the department can reasonably establish otherwise.

(f) License of intangible property where substance of transaction resembles a sale of goods or services.

1. In some cases, the license of intangible property will resemble the sale of an electronically-delivered good or service rather than the license of a marketing intangible or a production intangible. In these cases, the receipts from the licensing transaction are assigned by applying the rules set forth in subsection (9)(a) and (b) of this section, as if the transaction were a service delivered to an individual or business customer or delivered electronically through an individual or business customer, as applicable. Examples of transactions to be assigned under this subsection include, without limitation, the license of database access, the license of access to information, the license of digital goods and the license of certain software (e.g., where the transaction is not the license of pre-written software that is treated as the sale of tangible personal property).

2. Sublicenses. Pursuant to subsection (11)(f) of this section, the rules of subsection (9)(b) may apply where a taxpayer licenses intangible property to a customer that in turn sublicenses the intangible property to end users as if the transaction were a service delivered electronically through a customer to end users. In particular, the rules set forth in subsection (9)(b) that apply to services delivered electronically to a customer for purposes of resale and subsequent electronic delivery in substantially identical form to end users or other recipients may also apply with respect to licenses of intangible property for purposes of sublicense to end users. For this purpose, the intangible property sublicensed to an end user shall not fail to be substantially identical to the property that was licensed to the sublicensor merely because the sublicense transfers a reduced bundle of rights with respect to that property (e.g., because the sublicensee's rights are limited to its own use of the property and do not include the ability to grant a further sublicense), or because that property is bundled with additional services or items of property.

3. Examples. In these examples, unless otherwise stated, assume that the taxpayer is taxable in each state to which its receipts would be assigned so that there is no requirement in these examples that the receipts must be eliminated from the denominator of the taxpayer's receipts factor. Also assume that the customer is not a related member.

Example (i). Crayon Corp and Dealer Co enter into a license contract under which Dealer Co as licensee is permitted to use trademarks that are owned by Crayon Corp in connection with Dealer Co's sale of certain products to retail customers. Under the contract, Dealer Co is required to pay Crayon Corp a licensing fee that is a fixed percentage of the total volume of monthly sales made by Dealer Co of products using the Crayon Corp trademarks. Under the contract, Dealer Co is permitted to sell the products at multiple store locations, including store locations that are both within and without Kentucky. Further, the licensing fees that are paid by Dealer Co are broken out on a per-store basis. The licensing fees paid to Crayon Corp by Dealer Co represent fees from the license of a marketing intangible. The portion of the fees to be assigned to Kentucky are determined by multiplying the fees by a percentage that reflects the ratio of Dealer Co's receipts that are derived from its Kentucky stores relative to Dealer Co's total receipts.

Example (ii). Network Corp is a broadcaster that licenses rights to its film programming to both platform distribution companies and individual customers. Platform distribution companies pay licensing fees to Network Corp for the rights to distribute Network Corp's film programming to the platform distribution companies' customers. Network Corp's individual customers pay access fees to Network Corp for the right to directly access and view Network Corp's film programming. Network Corp's receipts from each platform distribution company will be assigned to Kentucky if the broadcast customer's commercial domicile is in Kentucky. Network Corp's receipts from each individual broadcast customer will be assigned to Kentucky if the address of the broadcast customer listed in the broadcaster's records is in Kentucky.

Example (iii). Moniker Corp enters into a license contract with Wholesale Co. Pursuant to the contract Wholesale Co is granted the right to use trademarks owned by Moniker Corp to brand sports equipment that is to be manufactured by Wholesale Co or an unrelated entity, and to sell the manufactured equipment to unrelated companies that will ultimately market the equipment to consumers in a specific geographic region, including a foreign country. The license agreement confers a license of a marketing intangible, even though the trademarks in question will be affixed to property to be manufactured. In addition, the license of the marketing intangible is for the right to use the intangible property in connection with sales to be made at wholesale rather than directly to retail customers. The component of the licensing fee that constitutes the Kentucky receipts of Moniker Corp is determined by multiplying the amount of the fee by a percentage that reflects the ratio of the Kentucky population in the specific geographic region relative to the total population in that region. If Moniker Corp is able to reasonably establish that the marketing intangible was materially used throughout a foreign country, then the population of that country will be included in the population ratio calculation. However, if Moniker Corp is unable to reasonably establish that the marketing intangible was materially used in the foreign country in areas outside a particular major city; then none of the foreign country's population beyond the population of the major city is include in the population ratio calculation. If Moniker Corp is not taxable in any state (including a foreign country) in which Wholesale Co's ultimate consumers are located, the receipts that would be assigned to that state are excluded from the denominator of Moniker Corp's receipts factor.

Example (iv). Formula, Inc and Appliance Co enter into a license contract under which Appliance Co is permitted to use a patent owned by Formula, Inc to manufacture appliances. The license contract specifies that Appliance Co is to pay Formula, Inc a royalty that is a fixed percentage of the gross receipts from the products that are later sold. The contract does not specify any other fees. The appliances are both manufactured and sold in Kentucky and several other states. Assume the licensing fees are paid for the license of a production intangible, even though the royalty is to be paid based upon the sales of a manufactured product (i.e., the license is not one that includes a marketing intangible). Because the department can reasonably establish that the actual use of the intangible property takes place in part in Kentucky, the royalty is assigned based to the location of that use rather than to location of the licensee's commercial domicile. It is presumed that the entire use is in Kentucky except to the extent that the taxpayer can demonstrate that the actual location of some or all of the use takes place outside Kentucky. Assuming that Formula, Inc can demonstrate the percentage of manufacturing that takes place in Kentucky using the patent relative to the manufacturing in other states, that percentage of the total licensing fee paid to Formula, Inc under the contract will constitute Formula, Inc's Kentucky receipts.

Example (v). Axel Corp enters into a license agreement with Biker Co in which Biker Co is granted the right to produce motor scooters using patented technology owned by Axel Corp, and also to sell the scooters by marketing the fact that the scooters were manufactured using the special technology. The contract is a license of both a marketing and production intangible, i.e., a mixed intangible. The scooters are manufactured outside Kentucky. Assume that Axel Corp lacks actual information regarding the proportion of Biker Co.'s receipts that are derived from Kentucky customers. Also assume that Biker Co is granted the right to sell the scooters in a U.S. geographic region in which the Kentucky population constitutes twenty-five (25) percent of the total population during the period in question. The licensing contract requires an upfront licensing fee to be paid by Biker Co to Axel Corp and does not specify what percentage of the fee derives from Biker Co's right to use Axel Corp's patented technology. Because the fees for the license of the marketing and production intangible are not separately and reasonably stated in the contract, it is presumed that the licensing fees are paid entirely for the license of a marketing intangible, unless either the taxpayer or the department reasonably establishes otherwise. Assuming that neither member establishes otherwise, twenty-five (25) percent of the licensing fee constitutes Kentucky receipts.

Example (vi). Same facts as Example (v), except that the license contract specifies separate fees to be paid for the right to produce the motor scooters and for the right to sell the scooters by marketing the fact that the scooters were manufactured using the special technology. The licensing contract constitutes both the license of a marketing intangible and the license of a production intangible. Assuming that the separately stated fees are reasonable, the department will: (1) Assign no part of the licensing fee paid for the production intangible to Kentucky, and (2) Assign twenty-five (25) percent of the licensing fee paid for the marketing intangible to Kentucky.

Example (vii). Better Burger Corp, which is based outside Kentucky, enters into franchise contracts with franchisees that agree to operate Better Burger restaurants as franchisees in various states. Several of the Better Burger Corp franchises are in Kentucky. In each case, the franchise contract between the individual and Better Burger provides that the franchisee is to pay Better Burger Corp an upfront fee for the receipt of the franchise and monthly franchise fees, which cover, among other things, the right to use the Better Burger name and service marks, food processes and cooking know-how, as well as fees for management services. The upfront fees for the receipt of the Kentucky franchises constitute fees paid for the licensing of a marketing intangible. These fees constitute Kentucky receipts because the franchisees are for the right to make Kentucky sales. The monthly franchise fees paid by Kentucky franchisees constitute fees paid for (1) the license of marketing intangibles (the Better Burger name and service marks), (2) the license of production intangibles (food processes and know-how), and (3) personal services (management fees). The fees paid for the license of the marketing intangibles and the production intangibles constitute Kentucky receipts because in each case the use of the intangibles is to take place in Kentucky. The fees paid for the personal services are to be assigned pursuant to this section.

Example (viii). Online Corp, a corporation based outside Kentucky, licenses an information database through the means of the Internet to individual customers that are resident in Kentucky and in other states. These customers access Online Corp's information database primarily in their states of residence, and sometimes, while traveling, in other states. The license is a license of intangible property that resembles a sale of goods or services and are assigned in accordance with subsection (11)(f) of this section. If Online Corp can determine or reasonably approximate the state or states where its database is accessed, it must do so. Assuming that Online Corp cannot determine or reasonably approximate the location where its database is accessed, Online Corp must assign the receipts made to the individual customers using the customers' billing addresses to the extent known. Assume for purposes of this example that Online Corp knows the billing address for each of its customers. In this case, Online Corp's receipts from sales made to its individual customers are in Kentucky in any case in which the customer's billing address is in Kentucky.

Example (ix). Net Corp, a corporation based outside Kentucky, licenses an information database through the means of the Internet to a business customer, Business Corp, a company with offices in Kentucky and two (2) neighboring states. The license is a license of intangible property that resembles a sale of goods or services and are assigned in accordance with subsection (11)(f) of this section. Assume that Net Corp cannot determine where its database is accessed but reasonably approximates that seventy-five (75) percent of Business Corp's database access took place in Kentucky, and twenty-five (25) percent of Business Corp's database access took place in other states. In that case, seventy-five (75) percent of the receipts from database access is in Kentucky. Assume alternatively that Net Corp lacks sufficient information regarding the location where its database is accessed to reasonably approximate the location. Under these circumstances, if Net Corp derives five (5) percent or less of its receipts from database access from Business Corp, Net Corp must assign the receipts under Section 5(9)(b) of this administrative regulation to the state where Business Corp principally managed the contract, or if that state is not reasonably determinable to the state where Business Corp placed the order for the services, or if that state is not reasonably determinable to the state of Business Corp's billing address. If Net Corp derives more than five (5) percent of its receipts from database access from Business Corp, Net Corp is required to identify the state in which its contract of sale is principally managed by Business Corp and must assign the receipts to that state.

Example (x). Net Corp, a corporation based outside Kentucky, licenses an information database through the means of the Internet to more than 250 individual and business customers in Kentucky and in other states. The license is a license of intangible property that resembles a sale of goods or services and receipts from that license are assigned in accordance with Section 5(11)(f) of this administrative regulation. Assume that Net Corp cannot determine or reasonably approximate the location where its information database is accessed. Also assume that Net Corp does not derive more than five (5) percent of its receipts from sales of database access from any single customer. Net Corp may apply the safe harbor stated in Section 5(9)(a)2.d. of this administrative regulation, and may assign its receipts to a state or states using each customer's billing address. If Net Corp is not taxable in one (1) or more states to which some of its receipts would be otherwise assigned, it must exclude those receipts from the denominator of its receipts factor.

Example (xi). Web Corp, a corporation based outside of Kentucky, licenses an Internet-based information database to business customers who then sublicense the database to individual end users that are resident in Kentucky and in other states. These end users access Web Corp's information database primarily in their states of residence, and sometimes, while traveling, in other states. Web Corp's license of the database to its customers includes the right to sublicense the database to end users, while the sublicenses provide that the rights to access and use the database are limited to the end users' own use and prohibit the individual end users from further sublicensing the database. Web Corp receives a fee from each customer based upon the number of sublicenses issued to end users. The license is a license of intangible property that resembles a sale of goods or services and are assigned by applying the rules set forth in Section 5(9)(b) of this administrative regulation. If Web Corp can determine or reasonably approximate the state or states where its database is accessed by end users, it must do so. Assuming that Web Corp lacks sufficient information from which it can determine or reasonably approximate the location where its database is accessed by end users, Web Corp must approximate the extent to which its database is accessed in Kentucky using a percentage that represents the ratio of the Kentucky population in the specific geographic area in which Web Corp's customer sublicenses the database access relative to the total population in that area.

(12) Sale of intangible property.

(a) Assignment of receipts. The assignment of receipts to a state or states in the instance of a sale or exchange of intangible property depends upon the nature of the intangible property sold. For purposes of this subsection, a sale or exchange of intangible property includes a license of that property where the transaction is treated for tax purposes as a sale of all substantial rights in the property and the receipts from transaction are not contingent on the productivity, use or disposition of the property. For the rules that apply where the consideration for the transfer of rights is contingent on the productivity, use or disposition of the property, see KRS 141.120(11)(a)(4)(b)iii.

1. Contract right or government license that authorizes business activity in specific geographic area. In the case of a sale or exchange of intangible property where the property sold or exchanged is a contract right, government license or similar intangible property that authorizes the holder to conduct a business activity in a specific geographic area, the receipts from the sale are assigned to a state if and to the extent that the intangible property is used or is authorized to be used within the state. If the intangible property is used or may be used only in Kentucky, the taxpayer shall assign the receipts from the sale to this state. If the intangible property is used or is authorized to be used in this state and one (1) or more other states, the taxpayer shall assign the receipts from the sale to this state to the extent that the intangible property is used in or authorized for use in this state, through the means of a reasonable approximation.

2. Sale that resembles a license (receipts are contingent on productivity, use or disposition of the intangible property). In the case of a sale or exchange of intangible property where the receipts from the sale or exchange are contingent on the productivity, use or disposition of the property, the receipts from the sale are assigned by applying the rules set forth in subsection (11) of this section (pertaining to the license or lease of intangible property).

3. Sale that resembles a sale of goods and services. In the case of a sale or exchange of intangible property where the substance of the transaction resembles a sale of goods or services and where the receipts from the sale or exchange do not derive from payments contingent on the productivity, use or disposition of the property, the receipts from the sale are assigned by applying the rules set forth in subsection (11)(f) of this section (relating to licenses of intangible property that resemble sales of goods and services). Examples of these transactions include those that are analogous to the license transactions cited as examples in subsection (11)(f)3. of this section.

4. Excluded receipts. Receipts from the sale of intangible property are not included in the receipts factor in any case in which the sale does not give rise to receipts within the meaning of KRS 141.120(1)(e). In addition, pursuant to KRS 141.120(11)(a)(4)(b)iii receipts from the sale of intangible property are excluded from the numerator and the denominator of the taxpayer's receipts factor if the receipts are not referenced in KRS 141.120(11)(a)(4)(b)i or KRS 141.120(11)(a)(4)(b)ii. The sale of intangible property that is excluded from the numerator and denominator of the taxpayer's receipts factor under KRS 141.120(11)(a)(4)(b)iii includes, without limitation, the sale of a partnership interest, the sale of business "goodwill," the sale of an agreement not to compete, or similar intangible value. Also, in any instance in which, the state to which the receipts from a sale is to be assigned can be determined or reasonably approximated, but where the taxpayer is not taxable in such state, the receipts that would otherwise be assigned to such state shall be excluded from the denominator of the taxpayer's receipts factor.

5. Examples. In these examples, unless otherwise stated, assume that the taxpayer is taxable in each state to which some of its receipts would be assigned, so that there is no requirement in these examples that the receipts to other states must be excluded from the taxpayer's denominator pursuant to subsection (11)(a) of this section and KRS 141.120(11)(c).

Example (i). Airline Corp, a corporation based outside Kentucky, sells its rights to use several gates at an airport located in Kentucky to Buyer Corp, a corporation that is based outside Kentucky. The contract of sale is negotiated and signed outside of Kentucky. The receipts from the sale are in Kentucky because the intangible property sold is a contract right that authorizes the holder to conduct a business activity solely in Kentucky.

Example (ii). Wireless Corp, a corporation based outside Kentucky, sells a license issued by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to operate wireless telecommunications services in a designated area in Kentucky to Buyer Corp, a corporation that is based outside Kentucky. The contract of sale is negotiated and signed outside of Kentucky. The receipts from the sale are in Kentucky because the intangible property sold is a government license that authorizes the holder to conduct business activity solely in Kentucky.

Example (iii). Same facts as in Example (ii) except that Wireless Corp sells to Buyer Corp an FCC license to operate wireless telecommunications services in a designated area in Kentucky and an adjacent state. Wireless Corp must attempt to reasonably approximate the extent to which the intangible property is used in or may be used in Kentucky. For purposes of making this reasonable approximation, Wireless Corp may rely upon credible data that identifies the percentage of persons that use wireless telecommunications in the two (2) states covered by the license.

Example (iv). Same facts as in Example (iii) except that Wireless Corp is not taxable in the adjacent state in which the FCC license authorizes it to operate wireless telecommunications services. The receipts paid to Wireless Corp that would be assigned to the adjacent state must be excluded from the denominator of Wireless Corp's receipts factor.

Example (v). Sports League Corp, a corporation that is based outside Kentucky, sells the rights to broadcast the sporting events played by the teams in its league in all fifty (50) U.S. states to Network Corp. Although the games played by Sports League Corp will be broadcast in all fifty (50) states, the games are of greater interest in the southeast region of the country, including Kentucky. Because the intangible property sold is a contract right that authorizes the holder to conduct a business activity in a specified geographic area, Sports League Corp must attempt to reasonably approximate the extent to which the intangible property is used in or may be used in Kentucky. For purposes of making this reasonable approximation, Sports League Corp may rely upon audience measurement information that identifies the percentage of the audience for its sporting events in Kentucky and the other states.

Example (vi). Same facts as in Example (v), except that Sports League Corp is not taxable in one (1) state. The receipts paid to Sports League Corp that would be assigned to that state must be excluded from the denominator of Sports League Corp's receipts factor.

Example (vii). Inventor Corp, a corporation that is based outside Kentucky, sells patented technology that it has developed to Buyer Corp, a business customer that is based in Kentucky. Assume that the sale is not one in which the receipts derive from payments that are contingent on the productivity, use, or disposition of the property. Inventor Corp understands that Buyer Corp is likely to use the patented technology in Kentucky, but the patented technology can be used anywhere (i.e., the rights sold are not rights that authorize the holder to conduct a business activity in a specific geographic area). The receipts from the sale of the patented technology are excluded from the numerator and denominator of Inventor Corp's receipts factor.

(13) Special rules.

(a) Software transactions. A license or sale of pre-written software for purposes other than commercial reproduction (or other exploitation of the intellectual property rights) transferred on a tangible medium is treated as the sale of tangible personal property, rather than as either the license or sale of intangible property or the performance of a service. In these cases, the receipts are in this state as determined under the rules for the sale of tangible personal property set forth under KRS 141.120(10) and related administrative regulations. In all other cases, the receipts from a license or sale of software are to be assigned to this state as determined otherwise under this administrative regulation. (e.g., depending on the facts, as the development and sale of custom software, see subsection (8) of this section, as a license of a marketing intangible, see subsection (11)(b) of this section, as a license of a production intangible, see subsection (11)(c) of this section, as a license of intangible property where the substance of the transaction resembles a sale of goods or services, see subsection (11)(f) of this section, or as a sale of intangible property, see subsection (12) of this section.

(b) Sales or licenses of digital goods or services.

1. In the case of a sale or license of digital goods or services, including, among other things, the sale of various video, audio, and software products, or similar transactions, the receipts from the sale or license are assigned by applying the same rules as are set forth in subsection (9)(a) and (b) or subsection 10(c)(5) of this section, as if the transaction were a service delivered to an individual or business customer or delivered through or on behalf of an individual or business customer. For purposes of the analysis, it is not relevant what the terms of the contractual relationship are or whether the sale or license might be characterized, depending upon the particular facts, as, for example, the sale or license of intangible property or the performance of a service.

2. Providers of communication services, cable service, and Internet access. Providers, as defined by KRS 141.121(1)(e), shall apportion income to this state using a three (3) factor formula as provided in KRS 141.901 pursuant to KRS 141.121(3).

Section 6. Special Rules: Receipts Factor. The following special rules are established in respect to the receipts factor of the apportionment formula:

(1) Bargeline. Bargelines shall determine receipts in this state by multiplying total transportation revenues by a fraction, the numerator of which is miles operated in this state and the denominator of which is total miles operated for the taxable year. Miles operated in this state shall be fifty (50) percent of the miles operated on the Ohio River, the Big Sandy River, and the Mississippi River adjacent to this state's shoreline plus all miles operated on other inland waterways within this state. A "mile operated" shall mean the movement of a barge, tug, or other watercraft one (1) mile.

(2) Busline. Buslines shall determine receipts in this state by multiplying total transportation revenues by a fraction, the numerator of which is miles operated in this state and the denominator of which is total miles operated for the taxable year.

(3) Passenger airline. Pursuant to KRS 141.121(2)(b)(1), passenger airlines, as defined by KRS 141.121(1)(d), shall determine receipts in this state by multiplying total transportation revenues by a fraction, the numerator of which is Kentucky revenue passenger miles in this state and the denominator of which is total revenue passenger miles for the taxable year. The term "Kentucky revenue passenger mile" is defined by KRS 141.121(1)(c), and the term "revenue passenger mile" is defined by KRS 141.121(1)(g).

(4) Pipeline. Pipeline companies shall determine receipts in this state by multiplying total operating revenues by a fraction, the numerator of which is barrel miles transported in this state and the denominator of which is total barrel miles transported for the taxable year. The term "barrel mile" shall mean the transportation of one (1) barrel of liquid or gas one (1) mile.

(5) Public service company. Public service companies, as defined by KRS 141.0401(6)(i), shall allocate and apportion net income in accordance with KRS 141.121(5).

(6) Qualified air freight forwarder. Pursuant to KRS 141.121(2)(b)(2), qualified air freight forwarders, as defined by KRS 141.121(1)(f), shall determine receipts in this state by multiplying total freight forwarding revenues by a fraction, the numerator of which is miles operated in this state and the denominator of which is total miles operated by the affiliated airline for the taxable year. The term "affiliated airline" is defined by KRS 141.121(1)(a).

(7) Railroad. Railroads shall determine receipts in this state by multiplying total transportation revenues by a fraction, the numerator of which is revenue car miles in this state and the denominator of which is total revenue car miles for the taxable year. The term "revenue car mile" shall mean the movement of a loaded railcar one (1) mile.

(8) Regulated investment company. Regulated investment companies shall apportion income pursuant to KRS 141.120 and this administrative regulation; provided, however, that a regulated investment company may elect an alternative method for determining receipts pursuant to KRS 141.121(4)(b).

(9) Securities brokerage services. Securities brokers operating within certain Kentucky Enterprises Zones defined by KRS 141.121(4)(c), shall apportion income pursuant to KRS 141.120 and this administrative regulation provided, however, that a securities broker so defined may elect an alternative method for determining receipts pursuant to KRS 141.121(4)(c).

(10) Truckline. Trucklines shall determine receipts in this state by multiplying total transportation revenues by a fraction, the numerator of which is miles operated in this state and the denominator of which is total miles operated for the taxable year. [Definition. (1) "Gross receipts" means the total amount of consideration, including cash, credit, property, and services, paid for the sale, lease, rental, or use of property.

Section 2. The following shall be examples of activities that result in the assignments of gross receipts to Kentucky and shall be included in the numerator described in KRS 141.120(8)(c), if the receipts are business income:

- (1) The sale, lease, rental, or other use of tangible personal property in this state;
- (2) The sale of real property located in Kentucky;
- (3) The lease, rental or other use of real property located in Kentucky;
- (4) The provision of services performed entirely in Kentucky during the tax period;
- (5) The provision of services performed within and without Kentucky during the tax period;
- (6) Intangible property received by a business with a commercial domicile in Kentucky;
- (7) Intangible property, if the intangible has acquired a Kentucky business situs;
- (8) Franchise fees received from a franchisee located in

Kentucky; and

(9) ~~The distributive share of net income received from a general partnership that is required to file a Kentucky income tax return under the provisions of KRS 141.206.~~

~~Section 3. Assignment of Sales to Kentucky. (1) Sales of real or tangible personal property shall be assigned to Kentucky if the property is in Kentucky or is shipped or delivered to a purchaser in Kentucky.~~

~~(2) Sales of goods destined for delivery outside of Kentucky shall not be assigned to Kentucky, irrespective of method of shipment or delivery.~~

~~(3) Sales of tangible personal property to the U.S. Government shall be assigned to Kentucky if the property is shipped from Kentucky.~~

~~(4) Receipts from intangibles shall be assigned to Kentucky if the corporation's commercial domicile is in Kentucky or the intangible has acquired a Kentucky business situs. Examples of receipts from intangibles which are deemed to have acquired a Kentucky business situs shall be franchise fees from a franchisee located in Kentucky and a corporation's Kentucky distributive share of net income from a general partnership doing business in Kentucky.~~

~~(5) Rents or royalties from real or tangible personal property shall be assigned to Kentucky if the property is located in Kentucky or in the case of mobile property the rent is assigned to Kentucky, if the lessee's base of operations for the property is in Kentucky.~~

~~(6) Receipts from the performance of services shall be assigned to Kentucky if the services are performed entirely in Kentucky, or the services are performed both within and without Kentucky but a greater portion is performed in Kentucky than in any other state based on cost of performance.~~

~~(7) If the corporation has income from a general partnership, the distributive share income shall be included in the sales factor. The denominator shall include the total distributive share; the numerator shall include the amount of the distributive share apportioned to Kentucky pursuant to KRS 141.206(9).~~

~~Section 4.(1) Receipts from intangible property shall be assigned to Kentucky, regardless of the corporation's or general partnership's commercial domicile, if possession and control of the intangible personal property is localized in connection with a trade or business, creating business situs with Kentucky, so that substantial use or value attaches to the intangible property in Kentucky.~~

~~(2) In determining if possession and control is localized in connection with a trade or business, the following factors shall be considered:~~

~~(a) The use of the intangible property in the continuous course of the trade or business in Kentucky;~~

~~(b) The permanency of the location of the intangible property in Kentucky;~~

~~(c) The independent control and management of the intangible property in Kentucky;~~

~~(d) The possession and control of the intangible property in Kentucky by an independent local agent for the purpose of transacting a permanent business; and~~

~~(e) The establishment or use of the intangible property in Kentucky in a manner that attaches substantial use and value of the intangible property to the Kentucky trade or business.~~

~~Section 5. This administrative regulation shall apply to tax periods beginning on or after January 1, 2005.]~~

REGULATORY IMPACT ANALYSIS AND TIERING STATEMENT

Contact Person: Todd Renner

(1) Provide a brief summary of:

(a) What this administrative regulation does: HB 487 implementing a significant change in the way corporations that delivered services to Kentucky are taxed. The Commonwealth moved from a "cost of performance" to a "market-based" standard for determining what services should be apportioned to the Commonwealth. LRC utilized a Multi-State Tax Commission (MTC) model regulation when drafting HB 487, and this administrative regulation uses the MTC model regulations as its foundation. This administrative regulation provides guidance to taxpayers to determine what services are considered sourced in Kentucky under the "market-based" sourcing rules for use in the single receipts factor apportionment calculations.

(b) The necessity of this administrative regulation: There are myriad different ways to determine how property and services are delivered to the market in Kentucky. This administrative regulation sets forth uniform methods for determining when property and services are sold, marketed, and delivered to customers in Kentucky. It also provides guidance for non-traditional industries for determining receipts in Kentucky based on market-related concepts (e.g., bargelines, railroads, etc.).

(c) How this administrative regulation conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes: This administrative regulation provides guidance for the significant changes HB 487 made to KRS 141.120(11) related to the marketing of services and other intangible property. The changes to statute require companies to apportion those receipts to Kentucky based on whether they are marketed in the Commonwealth. This administrative regulation expands guidance for determining what is "marketed."

(d) How this administrative regulation currently assists or will assist in the effective administration of the statutes: This administrative regulation provides the guidelines necessary to comply with the requirements of the statute.

(2) If this is an amendment to an existing administrative regulation, provide a brief summary of:

(a) How the amendment will change this existing administrative regulation: See (1)(a).

(b) The necessity of the amendment to this administrative regulation: See (1)(b).

(c) How the amendment conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes: See (1)(c). (d) How the amendment will assist in the effective administration of the statutes: See (1)(d).

(3) List the type and number of individuals, businesses, organizations, or state and local governments affected by this administrative regulation: Any multi-state corporation with apportionable income in Kentucky will be affected by this administrative regulation. There are approximately 200,000 corporate returns filed annually in the state.

(4) Provide an analysis of how the entities identified in question (3) will be impacted by either the implementation of this administrative regulation, if new, or by the change, if it is an amendment, including:

(a) List the actions that each of the regulated entities identified in question (3) will have to take to comply with this administrative regulation or amendment: Taxpayers are required to evaluate the nature of their receipts in the Commonwealth and may be required to change the apportionment of those receipts if they are marketed in Kentucky.

(b) In complying with this administrative regulation or amendment, how much will it cost each of the entities identified in question (3): Compliance costs are not readily available. However, multi-state taxpayers currently comply with market-based receipts sourcing in many other states, so they are familiar with the concept and have systems in place to comply.

(c) As a result of compliance, what benefits will accrue to the entities identified in question (3): Taxpayers that perform services in Kentucky and generate receipts for those services outside Kentucky will benefit from the elimination of the "cost of performance" standard and the adoption of the "market-based" standard for sourcing those receipts.

(5) Provide an estimate of how much it will cost to implement this administrative regulation:

(a) Initially: There are no new costs are associated with this administrative regulation. Current department staff and resources will be used to implement this administrative regulation.

(b) On a continuing basis: None.

(6) What is the source of the funding to be used for the implementation and enforcement of this administrative regulation: Currently budgeted department funding and staff will be utilized to implement this administrative regulation.

(7) Provide an assessment of whether an increase in fees or funding will be necessary to implement this administrative regulation, if new, or by the change, if it is an amendment: No increase in fees or funding will be necessary.

(8) State whether or not this administrative regulation establishes any fees or directly or indirectly increases any fees: No fees are established or increased by this administrative regulation.

(9) TIERING: Is tiering applied? Tiering was not applied to this administrative regulation. All taxpayers who fall under the provisions of this administrative regulation will be treated equally.

FISCAL NOTE ON STATE OR LOCAL GOVERNMENT

1. What units, parts or divisions of state or local government (including cities, counties, fire departments, or school districts) will be impacted by this administrative regulation? The Finance and Administration Cabinet, Department of Revenue, will be impacted.

2. Identify each state or federal statute or federal regulation that requires or authorizes the action taken by the administrative regulation. KRS 131.130(1), 141.018, and 141.120.

REGULATORY IMPACT ANALYSIS AND TIERING STATEMENT

Contact Person: Julie M. Campbell

(1) Provide a brief summary of:

(a) What this administrative regulation does: This administrative regulation establishes requirements for all examinations, licenses, and permits provided by the Kentucky Board of Cosmetology (KBC).

(b) The necessity of this administrative regulation: This amendment is necessary to set out the procedures to apply for examinations, permits, and licenses issued by the board. The proposed amendment is necessary to comply with new requirements arising out of the passage of Senate Bill 106 during the 2018 regular session of the General Assembly.

(c) How this administrative regulation conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes: This amendment details the necessary steps for persons to apply for examinations, permits, and licenses issued by the board as authorized by KRS 317A.050.

(d) How this administrative regulation currently assists or will assist in the effective administration of the statutes: This amendment provides a specific process for any interested person to apply for and receive a permit or license to practice cosmetology, esthetics, shampoo and style, or nail technology, and to open a licensed salon, facility, or school in the Commonwealth.

(2) If this is an amendment to an existing administrative regulation, provide a brief summary of:

(a) How the amendment will change this existing administrative regulation: This amendment modernizes the certification process by requiring digital certification for proof of passing score on a national exam or for an out of state license. The amendment further requires the board to transmit certifications digitally to reciprocal licensing agencies in other states. The amendment also adds "shampoo and style" licensing requirements pursuant to Senate Bill 106, passed during the 2018 regular session of the General Assembly. The amendment further clarifies license examination procedures and specifies that passing exam scores shall be valid for six (6) months.

(b) The necessity of the amendment to this administrative regulation: This amendment is needed to establish guidelines for new licenses due to legislative changes, to clarify acceptable methods for transmission of certifications, and to clarify examination procedures and score durations.

(c) How the amendment conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes: This amendment provides the necessary steps to apply for a board examination, permit, and license as authorized by KRS 317A.050.

(d) How the amendment will assist in the effective administration of the statutes: Through one concise administrative regulation, this amendment will facilitate the public's ability to apply for and receive the necessary examination, permit, and license to practice or teach cosmetology, esthetics, shampoo and style, or nail technology in the Commonwealth.

(3) List the type and number of individuals, businesses, organizations, or state and local governments affected by this administrative regulation: There are 62 licensed cosmetology schools with growth potential in the industry arising from the implementation of the new "shampoo and style" license and improved processes for all other licenses.

(4) Provide an analysis of how the entities identified in question (3) will be impacted by either the implementation of this administrative regulation, if new, or by the change, if it is an amendment, including:

(a) List the actions that each of the regulated entities identified in question (3) will have to take to comply with this administrative regulation or amendment: This amendment will not impose any new requirements on those entities identified in question (3) above. Rather, it will facilitate the steps necessary for those persons to apply to take a board examination and to obtain a permit or license.

(b) In complying with this administrative regulation or amendment, how much will it cost each of the entities identified in question (3): There is no anticipated cost because of this amendment.

(c) As a result of compliance, what benefits will accrue to the entities identified in question (3): This amendment will simplify the process for applicants and licensees to apply for board examinations, permits, licenses, and renewals.

(5) Provide an estimate of how much it will cost the administrative body to implement this administrative regulation:

(a) Initially: Some expenditure will be necessary to implement new licenses brought about by the passage of Senate Bill 106. Those costs cannot be assessed until the number of applicants for these new licenses is known. It is anticipated that the fees collected for these new licenses will offset the additional expenditure necessary.

(b) On a continuing basis: While initial outlays will decrease following the first year of implementation, administering new permits and licenses will have some continuing cost. Funds necessary for the implementation of new permits and licenses brought about by Senate Bill 106 are expected to be offset by fees collected.

(6) What is the source of the funding to be used for the implementation and enforcement of this administrative regulation: The KBC is entirely self-funded through collecting fees for examinations, permits, and licenses. Funds necessary for the implementation and enforcement of this administrative regulation are derived from the fees collected for KBC services.

(7) Provide an assessment of whether an increase in fees or funding will be necessary to implement this administrative regulation, if new, or by the change if it is an amendment: Although this amendment pertains to examinations, permits, and licenses, whether the accompanying fees set forth in 201 KAR 12:260 will require modification is likely to depend on the number of applications received.

(8) State whether this administrative regulation established any fees or directly or indirectly increased any fees: This amendment implements requirements for new licenses and permits and does not establish any associated fees. All fees for existing and new licenses and permits issued by the KBC are set out in 201 KAR 12:260, which is being concurrently amended to account for the new "shampoo and style" licenses.

(9) TIERING: Is tiering applied? Tiering is not applied as the requirements of this amendment apply equally to all applicants, permittees, and licensees.

FISCAL NOTE ON STATE OR LOCAL GOVERNMENT

(1) What units, parts, or divisions of state or local government (including cities, counties, fire departments, or school districts) will be impacted by this administrative regulation? Kentucky Board of Cosmetology.

(2) Identify each state or federal statute or federal regulation that requires or authorizes the action taken by the administrative regulation. KRS 317A.050, KRS 317A.060.

(3) Estimate the effect of this administrative regulation on the expenditures and revenues of a state or local government agency (including cities, counties, fire departments, or school districts) for the first full year the administrative regulation is to be in effect.

(a) How much revenue will this administrative regulation generate for the state or local government (including cities, counties, fire departments, or school districts) for the first year? Some new permits and licenses established by this amendment are created because of recent legislative changes. The revenue to be generated from these new licenses is presently unknown. It is anticipated that these new licenses will generate some additional revenue for the KBC in the first year, however, it is also anticipated that such revenue will be offset by the expenses of processing the new permits and licenses, and conducting necessary inspections.

(b) How much revenue will this administrative regulation generate for the state or local government (including cities, counties, fire departments, or school districts) for subsequent years? Some new permits and licenses established by this amendment are created because of recent legislative changes. The revenue to be generated from these licenses is presently unknown. It is anticipated that these new licenses will generate additional revenue in subsequent years, although the amount of additional revenue will be determined by the number of applicants and licenses. It is anticipated that the expenses of processing the licenses and inspections necessary for the newly permitted and licensed facilities will offset the additional revenue in subsequent years.

(c) How much will it cost to administer this program for the first year? Costs associated with implementing and overseeing the new permits and licenses in this amendment are presently unknown. However, those anticipated costs are expected to be offset by the fees collected for the newly created permits and licenses.

(d) How much will it cost to administer this program for subsequent years? Once the number of applicants for the new licenses is established in the first year, the expected costs for subsequent years can be assessed. It is anticipated that the additional costs associated with implementing these and the fees collected will offset licenses.

Note: If specific dollar estimates cannot be determined, provide a brief narrative to explain the fiscal impact of the administrative regulation.

Revenues (+/-): Increase.

Expenditures (+/-): Increase.

Other Explanation: At this time, it is unclear how many applicants will avail themselves of the new permit and license opportunities. The expected increase in revenue and expenditures associated with the new licenses contained in this amendment can be better assessed after the first year. To the extent the first year of issuing the new licenses pursuant to this amendment sets a quantifiable baseline, at that time the amount of annual revenue and expenditures from these new licenses can be better assessed.

REGULATORY IMPACT ANALYSIS AND TIERING STATEMENT

Contact Person: Julie M. Campbell

(1) Provide a brief summary of:

(a) What this administrative regulation does: This administrative regulation establishes requirements for the hours and courses of instruction, reporting, education requirements, and administrative functions for licensed schools of cosmetology, esthetics, and nail technology in Kentucky.

(b) The necessity of this administrative regulation: This administrative regulation is necessary to ensure standardized education that complies with state statutes.

(c) How this administrative regulation conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes: This administrative regulation conforms to all aspects of KRS 317A.050 and 317A.090 as amended by Senate Bill 106, passed during the 2018 regular session of the General Assembly.

(d) How this administrative regulation currently assists or will assist in the effective administration of the statutes: This administrative regulation outlines and defines education standards and the quantity of course hours required for licensed schools and students seeking Kentucky licensure by the board.

(2) If this is an amendment to an existing administrative regulation, provide a brief summary of:

(a) How the amendment will change this existing administrative regulation: The amendment will revise the curriculum to comport with the recent amendments to KRS 317A.050 and 317A.090 contained in Senate Bill 106, which took effect on July 1, 2018. The amendment adds provisions for new "shampoo and style" licensing and education, as well as allowing for "theory" components of apprentice instructor education to be completed digitally. Finally the amendment establishes a process for transferring education hours into cosmetology licensing application.

(b) The necessity of the amendment to this administrative regulation: This amendment is required to comply with Senate Bill 106, which amended KRS 317 to allow for a new type of "shampoo and style" license.

(c) How the amendment conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes: This amendment provides curriculum guidelines for education based on the statutory amendments in Senate Bill 106 adding a new shampoo and style license to be incorporated in Kentucky.

(d) How the amendment will assist in the effective administration of the statutes: This amendment will provide an updated regulatory scheme for licensed schools that complies with the governing statute.

(3) List the type and number of individuals, businesses, organizations, or state and local governments affected by this administrative regulation: There are 62 licensed cosmetology schools; all incoming students interested in pursuing a 'shampoo and style' license will be affected by this amendment. The amendment will also affect apprentice instructors seeking credit for digital "theory" curriculum and other board licensees seeking to transfer credit hours for a cosmetology license.

(4) Provide an analysis of how the entities identified in question (3) will be impacted by either the implementation of this administrative regulation, if new, or by the change, if it is an amendment, including:

(a) List the actions that each of the regulated entities identified in question (3) will have to take to comply with this administrative regulation or amendment: Licensed schools providing "shampoo and style" training will have to ensure their courses cover all topics set forth in the administrative regulation. Applicants seeking apprentice instructor licenses or seeking to transfer earned education credits to cosmetology applications will need to follow the steps set forth in the administrative regulation.

(b) In complying with this administrative regulation or amendment, how much will it cost each of the entities identified in question (3): It is unclear what the cost to regulated entities will be for including "shampoo and style" training in courses. The board anticipates additional costs will be offset by increased enrollment as more individuals pursue the new license types established by the passage of Senate Bill 106.

(c) As a result of compliance, what benefits will accrue to the entities identified in question (3): This amendment enables licensed schools to enroll students into programs based upon the statutorily adjusted curriculum requirements of Senate Bill 106. Kentucky's regulatory scheme for licenses will fully comply with its authorizing statutes, and be more closely aligned with similar licensing schemes of other states.

(5) Provide an estimate of how much it will cost the administrative body to implement this administrative regulation:

(a) Initially: No additional funds are necessary initially to implement this amendment.

(b) On a continuing basis: No additional funds are necessary on an ongoing basis to implement this amendment.

(6) What is the source of the funding to be used for the implementation and enforcement of this administrative regulation: All Kentucky Board of Cosmetology funding comes from fees collected from licensees and applicants. Current funding will not change as a result of this amendment.

(7) Provide an assessment of whether an increase in fees or funding will be necessary to implement this administrative regulation, if new, or by the change if it is an amendment: No changes or increases in fees are anticipated as a result of this amendment.

(8) State whether or not this administrative regulation established any fees or directly or indirectly increased any fees: No fees are created directly by this amendment. This amendment does relate to the new fees for "shampoo and style" licenses established in the board's concurrent proposal to amend 201 KAR 12:260.

(9) TIERING: Is tiering applied? Tiering is not applied as the requirements of this administrative regulation apply equally to all licensed schools and students.

REGULATORY IMPACT ANALYSIS AND TIERING STATEMENT

Contact Person: Julie M. Campbell

(1) Provide a brief summary of:

(a) What this administrative regulation does: This administrative regulation establishes a fee schedule for all applications, permits, and licenses issued by the Kentucky Board of Cosmetology (KBC).

(b) The necessity of this administrative regulation: This administrative regulation is necessary to set out a fee schedule for all persons and entities seeking a permit or license from the KBC.

(c) How this administrative regulation conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes: This administrative regulation establishes specific fees for those permits and licenses set forth in KRS Chapter 317A.

(d) How this administrative regulation currently assists or will assist in the effective administration of the statutes: This administrative regulation establishes specific fees for the issuance, renewal, and restoration of licenses and permits, board exams, and other miscellaneous fees of the KBC.

(2) If this is an amendment to an existing administrative regulation, provide a brief summary of:

(a) How the amendment will change this existing administrative regulation: This amendment creates fees for licensure for venues and employees at newly authorized "style bars" pursuant to Senate Bill 106, passed during the regular session of the 2018 general assembly. Additionally, the amendment raises the fee for certification of a license or school hours from twenty to twenty-five dollars to conform with other fees charged by the board and to more accurately reflect the administrative cost of such service.

(b) The necessity of the amendment to this administrative regulation: This amendment is necessary to define implementation and licensing fees arising from the passage of Senate Bill 106 during the regular session of the 2018 general assembly.

(c) How the amendment conforms to the content of the authorizing statutes: This amendment sets forth all KBC fees based on updated statutory requirements in KRS Chapters 317A.

(d) How the amendment will assist in the effective administration of the statutes: This amendment updates the single administrative regulation setting out all applicable fees for applications, permits, and licenses issued by the KBC.

(3) List the type and number of individuals, businesses, organizations, or state and local governments affected by this administrative regulation: It is uncertain how many current licensees or new applicants will seek licensure under the new

"shampoo and style" options offered by this amendment; given recent increases in popularity of such venues, the board anticipates a net growth in applications and licensees. Additionally, all licensees seeking certification of their license or school hours will be affected by a $5 increase in the fee for such service.

(4) Provide an analysis of how the entities identified in question (3) will be impacted by either the implementation of this administrative regulation, if new, or by the change, if it is an amendment, including:

(a) List the actions that each of the regulated entities identified in question (3) will have to take to comply with this administrative regulation or amendment: Licensees will have to pay the appropriate fees for licensure and board services, which now include "shampoo and style."

(b) In complying with this administrative regulation or amendment, how much will it cost each of the entities identified in question (3): Existing licensees will only face increases in costs if they seek certification of a license or school hours, in which case they will be subject to a $25 fee rather than $20. New licensees or existing licensees seeking the newly offered "shampoo and style" licenses may face a $50 initial license fee, $100 limited facility permit, $50 renewal license fee, $75 examination fee, and $100 salon license restoration fee.

(c) As a result of compliance, what benefits will accrue to the entities identified in question (3): New licensing options allow for additional growth of shampoo and style establishments and provide opportunities for employment for individuals who may not be interested in pursuing full cosmetology licensure or who are in the process of completing all required education and testing.

(5) Provide an estimate of how much it will cost the administrative body to implement this administrative regulation:

(a) Initially: No additional funds are necessary initially to implement this amendment.

(b) On a continuing basis: No additional funds are necessary on an ongoing basis to implement this amendment.

(6) What is the source of the funding to be used for the implementation and enforcement of this administrative regulation: The KBC is entirely self-funded through fees it collects for permits and licenses. There are no funds necessary to implement this amendment as it updates the fee schedule for applications, permits, and licenses.

(7) Provide an assessment of whether an increase in fees or funding will be necessary to implement this administrative regulation, if new, or by the change if it is an amendment: No increase in funding needed is needed to implement this administrative regulation, which itself sets the fees to be administered and collected by the board.

(8) State whether or not this administrative regulation established any fees or directly or indirectly increased any fees: This amendment sets forth fees for licensing based on updated statutory requirements found in KRS Chapter 317A as amended by Senate Bill 106, passed during the 2018 regular session of the General Assembly.

(9) TIERING: Is tiering applied? Tiering is not applied as the requirements of this amendment apply equally to all current and prospective licensees.

FISCAL NOTE ON STATE OR LOCAL GOVERNMENT

(1) What units, parts, or divisions of state or local government (including cities, counties, fire departments, or school districts) will be impacted by this administrative regulation? The Kentucky Board of Cosmetology (KBC).

(2) Identify each state or federal statute or federal regulation that requires or authorizes the action taken by the administrative regulation. KRS 317A.062.

(3) Estimate the effect of this administrative regulation on the expenditures and revenues of a state or local government agency (including cities, counties, fire departments, or school districts) for the first full year the administrative regulation is to be in effect.

(a) How much revenue will this administrative regulation generate for the state or local government (including cities, counties, fire departments, or school districts) for the first year?

The KBC is a self-funded agency, deriving its funding solely from the fees it collects for permits and licenses. This amendment modifies the fee schedule in the existing administrative regulation. It is expected to result in an increase in revenue during the first year. Increased revenue is necessary to implement new licenses brought about by the passage of Senate Bill 106.

(b) How much revenue will this administrative regulation generate for the state or local government (including cities, counties, fire departments, or school districts) for subsequent years? This amendment is expected to result in increased revenue in subsequent years, which will be used to fund new initiatives and continued oversight of the board's licensees.

(c) How much will it cost to administer this program for the first year? No additional cost is anticipated during the first year.

(d) How much will it cost to administer this program for subsequent years? No additional cost is anticipated for subsequent years.

Note: If specific dollar estimates cannot be determined, provide a brief narrative to explain the fiscal impact of the administrative regulation.

Revenues (+/-): Increase.

Expenditures (+/-): No impact.

Other Explanation: This amendment updates fees and does not involve any expenditures. As explained above, the fee adjustments in this amendment are anticipated to result in increased revenue. The amount of increased revenue is dependent on the number of applicants for examinations and licenses. As some of the licenses are newly established by Senate Bill 106, the expected amount of increased revenue for those new licenses is currently unknown. Taking into account additional expenditures incurred from new licenses, permits, and national testing, it is anticipated that the increase in fees for existing examinations, permits, and licenses could result in as much as a 10-20% increase in revenue.

If, after the APRN license has been voided, the APRN provides evidence of current certification acquired before the certification expiration date and there are no complaints pending against the APRN pursuant to 201 KAR 20:161 that indicate that reinstatement would create an immediate danger to the public health, safety, or welfare, then the APRN shall meet the requirements of Section 6 of this administrative regulation except for Section 6(4) of this administrative regulation.
