6 a standout tennis player; and

7 WHEREAS, Robert Jenkins graduated from Wake Forest University, where he 8 received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Political Science in 1981; and the Salmon P. Chase
9 College of Law at Northern Kentucky University, where he received a Juris Doctor 10 degree in 1984; and

11 WHEREAS, after being admitted to the bar in 1984, Robert Jenkins spent the next 12 several years in private practice, performing a variety of civil and appellate work with an 13 emphasis in Social Security and workers' compensation; and

14 WHEREAS, in 1993, Robert Jenkins accepted a position with the Legislative 15 Research Commission as a Legislative Analyst with the Health and Welfare Committee,

22 WHEREAS, in 2008, Robert Jenkins was appointed to his current position of 26 tracking; and

27 WHEREAS, this position is, in reality, an all-encompassing job which involves

1 constant communication and coordination among non-partisan staff, leadership staff, 2 legislators, and the executive branch; and

3 WHEREAS, Robert Jenkins approached this difficult and demanding job the way
4 he did all things during his career at LRC: with an analytical approach to problem

6 the individuals involved in the process, and an abiding respect and devotion to the 7 institution of the legislature; and

8 WHEREAS, outside of work, Robert Jenkins has volunteered his time and efforts to 9 numerous causes, including the Jaycees, the Association for the Blind, and the United

11 greyhounds, in particular Niles and Nigel, the two dogs he and his husband Randy helped 12 save from a life to which no animal should be subjected; and

13 WHEREAS, after a career of dedicated service, Robert Jenkins has announced his 14 retirement; and while this body, the LRC, and this institution as a whole will acutely miss 15 his expertise and acumen, it is fitting and proper that we take time to honor his dedicated
