A RESOLUTION urging the United States Department of Transportation and the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration to reconsider the recent federal requirements for the certification of commercial driver's license holders.

WHEREAS, on February 7th, 2022, new federal requirements for entry-level driver training for Commercial Driver's License (CDL) applicants went into effect. These Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration (FMCSA) regulations for entry-level driver training (ELDT) for CDL licenses were mandated under the Moving Ahead for Progress in the 21 Century Act (MAP-21); and

WHEREAS, the new ELDT regulations establish the baseline for training required for entry-level drivers. They apply to anyone who applies after February 7, who is seeking to obtain a Class A or Class B CDL for the first time, upgrade an existing Class B CDL to Class A CDL, or obtain a first-time school bus, passenger, or hazardous materials endorsement; and

WHEREAS, it the opinion of the Senate and the opinion of many in the trucking industry that these additional, burdensome requirements will have a negative effect on the ability of trucking companies, already stretched thin by the burdens of the COVID-19 pandemic, to attract the drivers necessary to keep the economy going; and

WHEREAS, with the trucking industry already facing a shortage of drivers, adding the new requirements will deter drivers from getting into transportation and further decrease the pool of CDL drivers. This shortage of drivers will only make current supply chain issues the nation has experienced recently that much worse; and

WHEREAS, classes and training required under these new regulations could add upwards of $7,500 and at least a month of additional waiting to the CDL certification process; and

WHEREAS, there is also real concern that enough training opportunities may not be available to ensure that individuals who wish to meet the new training requirement will be able to complete the training in the shortest amount of time possible; and WHEREAS, these regulations will have a similar deleterious effect on two other vital areas of our daily life: agriculture and schools; and

WHEREAS, although they enjoy some limited exemptions, hardworking farmers hauling grain or livestock or picking up a piece of equipment that is more than 150 miles from their farms will feel the full effects of the delays and added costs associated with these new regulations; and

WHEREAS, Kentucky’s 171 school districts, already struggling to find qualified bus drivers, will similarly face more time consuming and costly barriers to filling those vital positions;

NOW, THEREFORE,

Be it resolved by the Senate of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

Section 1. The members of the Senate, individually and collectively, hereby urge the United States Department of Transportation and the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration to reconsider, delay, or roll back some of the more onerous aspects of the entry level driver training regulations.

Section 2. The Clerk of the Senate shall send a copy of this Resolution to Pete Buttigieg, United States Secretary of Transportation, and to Jack Van Steenburg, Executive Director and Chief Safety Officer of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration.
