14 globe, from California, to Germany, and eventually to France, where he worked for VLSI 15 Technology before striking out on his own as a consultant in 1996; and

16 WHEREAS, during a visit home to Glasgow in early 1997, he sold his father on an

20 WHEREAS, the Riherd's Scoreboard officially kicked off in the fall of 1997, and as

26 WHEREAS, the importance of this endeavor was perhaps best explained by Frank 27 Riherd himself, when he said, "Each of those points comes from a player competing as

2 all of this. That's our North Star — the athlete"; and

3 WHEREAS, on January 10, 2026, Frank Riherd announced that the 2025-2026 4 school year will be his last managing the scoreboards; and

5 WHEREAS, news of Frank Riherd stepping away from the scoreboard he has made 6 his life's work was met with sadness and deep appreciation from all corners of the 7 Commonwealth, with KHSAA Commissioner Julian Tackett summing up the feelings of 8 many when he said, "He's been a fixture in our association for a long time. We really 9 express our love and affection for him as well as our respect for the professional work 10 he's done on behalf of our membership"; and

11 WHEREAS, Zack Klemme, the sports director for HD Media, with 13 newspapers 12 in Kentucky, Virginia, West Virginia, and Ohio, also lauded Frank Riherd's work: "The 14 of use. I am thankful for the role Frank Riherd has played for 15 years in making my life 15 easier and making my work better"; and

16 WHEREAS, the KHSAA has pledged to continue the scoreboard, and although the 17 service will undoubtedly continue, the vision, passion, and foresight of Frank Riherd and 18 the indelible mark he has made on high school athletics in the Commonwealth will never 19 be forgotten and is certainly worthy of public recognition;
