FISCAL EXPLANATION: Most of these boards, commissions, and councils are not active and have not met for a number of years. The Kentucky Athletic Trainers Advisory Council is the exception. The Kentucky Board of Medical Licensure reports that abolishing the Kentucky Athletic Trainers Advisory Council would result in a savings of approximately $400 per year. The council meets on a quarterly basis; however, they only meet in person one time per year. The remainder of the meetings take place via conference call. Members of the council are not compensated for their service but they receive reimbursement for expenditures relating to attendance at committee meetings, consistent with state policies for the reimbursement of travel expenses for state employees.
