STATE IMPACT: Class A, B & C felonies are based on an average daily prison rate of $70.12. Most Class D felons are housed in one of 76 full service jails for up to 5 years. DOC's cost to incarcerate a felony inmate in a jail is $31.45 per day (includes jail per diem, medical & central office costs), not including substance abuse treatment. Projections are based on the daily rate x 365 x number of years.

Projected Impact: NONE MODERATE (< $1 million) SIGNIFICANT (> $1 million)

This legislation adds serious mental illness as a factor which would prohibit an offender from being subject to execution under a capital offense. To be applicable, the defendant would have to have a documented serious mental illness at the time of offense. The legislation lists six mental disorders that would be considered: schizophrenia, schizoaffective disorder; bipolar disorder; major depressive disorder; delusional disorder; or post-traumatic stress disorder.

It is not known how many offenders would be precluded from a sentence of death under this legislation. Given the relatively small number of offenders receiving a capital conviction, the number of offenders who would meet the criteria established in this legislation would be a smaller percentage.

There are currently 32 inmates on death row in Kentucky. It is assumed that if not receiving a sentence of death, a defendant targeted by this legislation may well be sentenced to life in prison.

Inmates currently under the death penalty have served an average of 24.5 years from the start of their incarceration and inmates who have been executed spent an average of 12 years from incarceration until death. Male inmates with a sentence of death are housed at the Kentucky State Penitentiary, which has an average annual cost to incarcerate of $35,764.60 per inmate. Female inmates with a sentence of death are housed at the Kentucky Correctional Institute for Women at an annual cost of $28,897.06.

For the 899 inmates currently serving a sentence of life without parole, the current average length of time served is 18.4 years. For inmates who have died while incarcerated serving on a life sentence, the average time served prior to death was 26 years. The average annual cost to incarcerate offenders with a life sentence is $25,594.44 per year. However, given the specific mental health needs of the offenders identified by this legislation, they would likely be housed in a mental health unit at a slighter higher cost of $29,314.41 annually.

Additional savings to the state in a life sentence rather than a sentence of death would be costs avoidance associated with an execution, including lethal injection drugs, handling of the body (ambulance, coroner, crematorium, etc.), the execution team (training and overtime pay), and added security for the public, press, etc. Also eliminated would be costs the state bears for legal appeals available to death row inmates.
